

Arrests are allowed without explanation

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi further tightened her emergency rule in India today, authorizing police to make arrests without telling their prisoners why.

The ordinance, issued in the early morning hours by President Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed, said arresting authorities need only make a declaration that the detention is necessary for dealing with the emergency declared by Mrs. Gandhi last Thursday.

Issuance of the order underlined the concern with which the 57-year-old prime minister views persisting opposition to her refusal to resign and her arrests of non-Communist leaders opposing her stay in power. The first known anti-Gandhi protest in New Delhi took place Sunday. Police swinging bamboo staves waded into demonstrators and crushed it quickly.

The new ordinance empowers authorities at all levels to make arrests under the emergency powers, which already allow police to jail troublemakers without trial and bar prisoners from appealing to the courts.

But if the arrests are made by local authorities, they must be reviewed by state officers within 15 days and confirmed as necessary. They must be reconfirmed at four-month intervals, the ordinance said.

The original emergency decree provided that prisoners must be told the grounds of their arrest within a few days.

Censorship was imposed under the Defense of India Rules when the state of emergency was declared. With the exception of dispatches based on government briefings, reports by foreign correspondents must be submitted to authorities for scrutiny and written authorization before they can be sent abroad.

Only scattered outbursts have been reported since the government proclaimed a state of emergency last Thursday. Arrested hundreds of opponents of the prime minister and imposed censorship. A government spokesman said the country was generally calm, and there was no indication that the anti-Gandhi movement had gotten off the ground.

Before their arrest, Jayaprakash Narayan and other leading opponents had called for nationwide demonstrations Sunday which they hoped would culminate in a civil disobedience campaign patterned on those Mohandas K. Gandhi and Jawaharlal Nehru, Mrs. Gandhi's father, led against the British.

Their goal was to force the prime minister to resign because of a partially adverse ruling against her by a Supreme Court justice. The judge ruled that she could continue as prime minister while appealing her conviction for campaign law violations, but she could not vote in Parliament.

The capital had its first demonstration against Mrs. Gandhi on Sunday as hundreds of youths ran through the old part of the city, shouting slogans against her. Police used bamboo staves to quell the outburst, and arrested more than 200 of the youths.

A government spokesman also reported that "vandals" attacked property and threw stones at buses in Bihar and Gujarat states, and that there were a few other outbursts of violence.

The spokesman, Dr. A. R. Baji, said the total number under arrest was now "much larger" than the 900 previously acknowledged, but he refused to give the new total.

Tight situation

State Patrol trooper Joe Dayringer and ambulance attendant Sammy Watson attempt to pry Lloyd Knox, 26, 508 West Broadway, from his car Sunday night after Knox was involved in a head-on collision with another car on West Main Street, just east of Highway 50. Knox suffered a scalp laceration and was treated and released from Bothwell Hospital. The driver of the other car, Gary Lewis, 116 South Stewart, remained in Bothwell Hospital in serious condition Monday morning with leg and tongue lacerations. A passenger in the Lewis car, Daryl Bolton, 16, Cole Camp, was also listed in serious condition at Bothwell Hospital with injuries to his right leg, left arm and chest. Lewis' brother, Gaylen Lewis, 16, was treated for a broken finger and released. The Patrol stated that the Lewis car was headed west on Main when Lewis apparently lost control and went into the path of the Knox vehicle.

FBI searching reservation

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (AP) — The FBI has no positive identification on the 16 persons sought in the shooting deaths of two agents on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation, but "we have a pretty good indication of who they are," a spokesman said.

Spokesman Thomas Coll said Sunday that more than 150 agents were searching the rolling, rugged hills of the reservation, the second largest in the country, for the 16 persons believed to have been involved in the deaths of agents Ronald Williams and Jack Coler.

Williams and Coler, both 28, were gunned down Thursday afternoon as they attempted to serve federal warrants on four men. One of the four, Teddy Paul Pourier, was arrested earlier Thursday at his home. Another, Herman Thunder Hawk, was arrested Saturday near Murdo, about 100 miles from Pine Ridge.

Remaining at large were Robert Horse and James Eagle.

Coll said the two agents were shot when they attempted to serve the warrant on Eagle.

The body of an Indian, identified Sunday as Joseph Bedell Stuntz, 24, of the Lapwai Agency in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, was found at the shooting site. Coll said Stuntz was wearing a coat belonging to one of the slain agents.

As the FBI continued a search of the area and conducted interviews with the Oglala Sioux who live on the reservation, a number of residents signed a petition asking the agents to leave.

Residents of the community of Oglala said Sunday they did not want the FBI to continue its activities on the reservation. Coll said the bureau had not seen the petition and that agents would continue their search until the 16 persons are found or until it is determined that they are not on the reservation.

In Piedmont, Calif., fire bombs exploded early Sunday in the backyards of two luxurious homes and a terrorist group claimed it set them off in support of embattled Indians at the Pine Ridge reservation.

No one was injured and damage was estimated at $8,000 in the fiery blasts just moments apart on neighboring homes in the exclusive residential area near Oakland.

The New World Liberation Front claimed in a communique received later by San Francisco radio station KPOO that it "attacked a nest of ruling class vipers in Piedmont last night."

Solar power to come

Oil: energy source of present

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal energy researchers told Congress today that solar power may be of major potential use in the 21st century but that the nation will still be importing oil until at least 1995.

The Energy Research and Development Administration, in a report titled "Creating Energy Choices for the Future," said a number of energy alternatives must be pursued to allow sufficient margin for inevitable failures.

The report also said throwing all support toward a single target, such as nuclear power or creating synthetic fuel from coal or oil shale, even if successful, would not solve the nation's energy problems.

Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., the head of ERDA, told reporters he could place no pricetag on energy development through the year 2000.

While establishing different energy priorities for near-term, mid-term and long-term, the report said five changes in U.S. energy research, development and demonstration must be made quickly:

—Emphasize solving technical problems that now are inhibiting expansion of current energy sources, especially coal plants and light-water nuclear reactors.

—Stress energy conservation, especially in autos, buildings and industrial processes.

—Add solar power to breeder reactors and fusion power in the category of energy from virtually inexhaustible sources.

—Accelerate commercial capability in synthetic fuel production: the extraction of gaseous and liquid fuels from coal and oil shale.

Observing that the United States has already gone through 60-year cycles of shifting primary fuel dependency from wood to coal to oil and gas, the report set these priorities for future use:

—Near-term, present to 1985: Expand present coal, nuclear, gas and oil systems through new sources and better recovery from existing sources.

Higher prices ahead

CHICAGO (AP) — "June 30 may be an historic day," a leading energy expert predicted today. "If a consumer doesn't have a tank of gas by midnight, he's missed the party."

Herbert Hugo, senior editor of Platt's Oilgram, an independent daily oil newsletter, said that the price of gasoline may never be as cheap as it is today.

The cost spiral probably will begin before the Fourth of July weekend as most major petroleum companies plan to announce price increases of between 3 cents and 5 cents a gallon, said Hugo.

The trend should continue for the next 25 years, he added.

Hugo said in an interview that drivers have forgone their fears of gasoline shortages and the demand has dealers hoping to hike their profit margins, which have suffered during recent months because of sagging sales.

Although many petroleum companies increased production last week, the additional supplies won't offset the recent import tax of $1 a barrel and desires to reap profits from the additional demand, Hugo said.

Hugo estimated that gasoline would jump from its present average of about 60 cents a gallon to between 70 cents to 75 cents by 1976.

One private company already has informed Hugo officially of its intention to raise prices and he predicted that others will follow.

"There will be a real deluge of price hike announcements in the next few days," he said. "Maybe a consumer should get a can or a thimble full of gasoline, just for posterity's sake. It's not going to be any cheaper in this century."

Problems, problems

Gary Hicks, 5, had a rough time Monday morning deciding what fireworks he wanted at the Astro Fireworks stand on South Highway 65. After he finally picked what he wanted, his mother, Mrs. James G. Hicks, Route 1, gave Gary another problem when she decided to make all decisions concerning the family's fireworks for July 4.

Future headlines are shocking

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1985, federal taxes will be outlawed and smoking banned.

The elderly no longer will be shuttled off to nursing institutions but will be cared for at home; mandatory retirement will be moved down to age 50 in order to provide more jobs; and, to help curb population growth, prospective parents will have to apply for permits.

These are not the ramblings of an ambitious social scientist or an avant garde politician. They are goals some average citizens would like to see become realities in the near future.

As part of a promotion for a new book by Alvin Toffler, author of "Future Shock," 45 radio talk shows around the country were asked to have their listeners call in their predictions of newspaper headlines for next year and for 10 years from now.

Alan Christian of WBAL in Baltimore, Md., said during the three hours his show was broadcast, about 45 people called in offering headlines.

"People are interested in new ideas," he said. "Like moving cities underground and reclaiming the surface for agricultural purposes, or putting cities in orbit around the earth and doing the same thing."

Among 1976 headlines predicted: "California falls into sea," "Ford proposes $1.5 billion relief for Israeli refugees," "Nixon turns down Cabinet post to remain ambassador to China," and "U.S. makes contact with UFO's."

For 1985, listeners said: "Public schools abolished — competitive systems replace them," "Smog and Air Pollution abolished," "Mortgage on technology" and "Unemployment in U.S. falls below 2 per cent."

FBI recaptures man accused of robbery

BEND, Ore. (AP) — Floyd Clayton Forsberg, accused in one of the century's largest bank robberies, has been recaptured by the FBI after escaping from jail.

Forsberg fled from the Washoe County jail in Reno, Nev. in April. He had been awaiting trial on a charge of armed robbery in the holdup of the First National Bank of Reno on Sept. 27, 1974 in which more than $1 million in cash was taken.

Forsberg, 33, and two other men were accused of walking into the bank and staging the robbery during the din of the annual Shriners' parade. Curtis Michaelson, 36, pleaded guilty to an armed robbery charge on June 2. Edward T. Malone, 50, was found innocent on a similar charge June 10.

Agents said Forsberg was recaptured without violence on Sunday. They said he was arrested at the Bend Riverside Motel by about a dozen agents who had quietly evacuated the occupants of nearby rooms in the motel. Arrested with Forsberg were his wife, DeEtta, 54, and Clark Gable Timmons, 30.

Mrs. Forsberg is charged with harboring a federal fugitive, perjury, receiving and concealing stolen bank bonds and bond default. Timmons is charged with unlawful flight to avoid federal prosecution in a drug case.

Senators give USSR Jews boost

MOSCOW (AP) — Leading Soviet Jewish activists said a two-hour meeting with visiting U.S. senators reassured them that Congress has not forgotten their plight.

"It was a very important meeting," said Alexander Lerner, who is prominent in the Jewish emigration movement. "I feel now our fate is in the right hands; it has given me a feeling of optimism and hope."

Lerner and 16 other Jews met Sunday night with 10 of the 14 senators who arrived earlier Sunday for a four-day official visit. The meeting in Sen. Jacob K. Javits' hotel room was the biggest gathering of Jews and members of the U.S. Congress ever held in Moscow, and what the senators were told could have an important bearing on future Soviet-American trade legislation in Congress.

Alexander Luntz, one of the Jewish leaders, said the senators "want to help us and at the same time get along with the Soviet Union."

"It was a very good meeting. They understood everything," said Vladimir Slepak, who for five years has been refused permission to emigrate.

Newsmen were barred from the meeting, but Javits, R-N.Y., and Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., said they wanted to find out the status of Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union.

The current rate of emigration indicates that only about 12,000 Jews will be allowed to leave this year, or about a third of the number in the peak year of 1973. The Soviets contend that the decrease is due to fewer Jews wanting to leave.

Javits, cosponsor with Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., of the amendment that blocked trade concessions to the Soviet Union until emigration restrictions are relaxed, said the Jews "made a very good case" that the drop in emigrations this year is due to a reduction in the number allowed to go rather than "a diminution of those who wish to emigrate."

The Soviet government rejected the Soviet-American trade bill last year on the ground that the Jackson amendment was unacceptable interference in domestic affairs of the Soviet Union.

While some of the Jews were trailed to the hotel by plainclothes police, there was no attempt to prevent them from attending the meeting.

Homicide, arson officials probe St. Louis man

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Homicide and arson squad detectives were investigating the death of a man whose body was found in his burning north St. Louis County apartment early Sunday.

Frank Hall, 28, was discovered by Normandy fireman answering an alarm, police said. The St. Louis County medical examiner's office said he apparently died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Witnesses told police they saw three men drive away in Hall's car shortly before the fire was discovered.

Ann Landers

Food wasted by unthinking pupils

Dear Ann Landers: I read a news story recently worth sharing. An elementary school principal became distressed watching pupils toss most of their lunches into garbage cans.

To dramatize the waste, this principal gathered the pupils and teachers together and dumped the contents of the nearest trash can onto a table.

Among other items, out rolled large, unpeeled oranges, shiny red apples with not a bite missing, and an assortment of neatly-wrapped sandwiches. A sixth-grader prepared the official inventory — 41 sandwiches, two cartons of milk, two whole pieces of chicken, three bags of potato chips, 19 apples, 13 oranges, one piece of cake, an untouched carton of chocolate pudding, four whole carrots, two small boxes of raisins, 19 pieces of candy and 14 cookies.

After the demonstration, the principal sent a letter to the parents of his 430 pupils, itemizing what had been found in the trash can. Teachers launched lessons on food waste and nutrition. The children were impressed with the experiment and learned from it.

Please print this, Ann. Perhaps when school opens in the fall, other teachers might want to try this experiment. — California Reader

Dear Reader: What a splendid idea! I heartily recommend it — not only for schools, but also for housewives. If they'd observe the eating habits of their families and check on what is thrown out daily, perhaps they would change their menus.

Dear Ann Landers: I've seen many letters in your column defending the rights of smokers vs. non-smokers. I'm a smoker who makes every attempt to keep from bothering others and now I wish THEY would respect MY right not to be bothered by their dogs. Why is it that normally nice people seem to think their pets belong everywhere?

Why haven't you blasted those boors who insist on taking their dogs into beauty shops, supermarkets, restaurants, office buildings and public conveyances? Have you ever had to sit near and smell a wet, dirty mongrel on a train or a bus?

As a former member of the Harvard University student community, I was appalled at the number of dogs (and cats) allowed to roam the cafeterias! I have also found that people who take their dogs everywhere fail to give them proper grooming or training.

The only exception is seeing-eye dogs — they are invariably beautifully-groomed and well-mannered. Please address yourself to this problem, Ann. I have — Had It.

Dear Had: According to the Chicago Public Health Dept., the state regulations say no pets are allowed where food is prepared, processed or stored. However, the managers of supermarkets and the proprietors of grocery stores are not obligated to post signs.

A Chicago Transit Authority spokesman said dogs are allowed on buses in our city if they are muzzled and on leashes. Lap dogs must be muzzled and held on laps.

The Greyhound Bus people said, "No dogs allowed except those leading the blind."

If you are bothered by dogs in places where the law says they shouldn't be, complain to the manager. If he fails to cooperate, report him to the District Attorney.

Star photographer says

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Francesco Scavullo, the guy who does those sensuous Cosmopolitan covers, says he needs sexual electricity flowing between him and his subject to make a beautiful photo.

"You have to break down all the insecurities a woman may feel. You have to make her feel good," said Scavullo behind his Hasselblad camera and murmuring, "beautiful, sexy," to a seductively posturing model.

Scavullo's studio is papered with his magazine cover photos as well as huge black and whites of stars he's shot: Liza Minelli, Janis Joplin, Gloria Cooper, Barbra Streisand, Kirk Douglas and Mick Jagger. He's also the photographer who brought us Burt Reynolds in the raw, triggering the rage for nude male centerfolds.

His talent with shutter and lens has elicited a stream of compliments from grateful subjects.

Scavullo, a calm, slight, and gentle man is hardly Hollywood's image of the lady killer.

"I have a passion for my work. I love people and get turned on by looking at them through my camera. I like women to look their best. And I try to take pictures of what I think they should look like," said Scavullo.

For the photo session, he provides the make-up (the current man with the powder puff is Way Bandy), the hairdo (done by various leading hair stylists) and the latest clothes (fashion editor Sean Byrnes handles these). It's sort of like retouching the person instead of the photo — though he does a lot of that, too.

Scavullo admits it's easier to change a "Mrs. Smith's" looks than those of a movie star who thinks she knows exactly what her image should be.

"They have to trust me," he says. "But most stars are very nervous."

"I don't have to build up a man's ego or get him to trust me," he says. "I change my whole chatter routine for men."

But even mere mortals — if they have money — can get snappy passport photos by Scavullo. He is known for his provocative Cosmopolitan cover girl photos.

"He just evolved the looks that is the Cosmo girl. Sensual, luminous, sexy and yet very elegant," said Helen Gurley Brown, editor of the magazine.

Some say the sexuality in his photos emerges more from the makeup, clothes, special lights and retouching than anything else. Others simply say that he is a terribly good photographer who knows how to pick the right shot.

Writing award for convict

Paul Ferguson, convicted of murdering silent movie star Ramon Navarro and now serving time in San Quentin Prison for the crime, has become a prize-winning author. He is the first prisoner in California to win first prize in fiction from PEN, an international writers' association. The short story is about an embittered young man arrested at a human rights demonstration.

Polly's pointers

Don't grease seasoned iron

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those small articles of hardware that are put in heavy plastic packages that must cost as much as the article itself. After struggling to open them we sometimes find the item does not fit. There is no chance of returning it for the right size as that plastic is broken. — HAROLD.

DEAR POLLY — When you splash paint on your eye glasses don't use paint remover or gasoline to clean it off. You might wreck plastic or even metallic frames. I use toothpaste. It removes any kind of paint and leaves the lenses shiny and clear with no objectionable odor. — MILDRED.

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer pertains to a toy my husband made for our daughter when she was small and that she still uses. Perhaps other handy fathers would like to try it, too. He built a plywood stove that had a door for the oven and a pot drawer below that. Burners were painted on the top. Besides entertaining her it was a neat storage place for her tea sets.

Now that she is too old for this as a toy we have given it a bright new coat of paint covering up the "burners" and added a clear plastic door knob and drawer pull. Now it is her bedside table and holds books and records inside and her lamp on top. — DONNA.

DEAR POLLY — Want a safe and easy way to keep your stainless steel sink or stove top looking like new and with no lime spots? Rub with the cut side of a lemon, rinse and wipe dry. Wrap lemon and save in the refrigerator to be used again. — MRS. E.K.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — Need we tell anyone that once a waffle iron has been seasoned the grids never need regreasing? A friend borrowed my wonderful waffle iron, a kind that cannot be replaced, and greased the grids — now they are dark, burned looking and smoke when heated. I would certainly appreciate knowing if anything can be done to restore them. — Mrs. F.J.K.

DEAR MRS. J.K. — Grids to a waffle iron naturally darken with age. You might clean the grids with a slightly dampened steel wool pad to remove that burned-on fat. Brush out all loose particles and then reseason. To do this apply a small amount of UNSALTED fat with a pastry brush to get in all the crevices. Close and turn on low heat for 8 to 10 minutes, turn off and wipe away all excess fat with paper towels. After each use brush grids with a stiff brush to remove crumbs or bits of burned-on batter. — POLLY.

Women douse coals in Newcastle

NEWCASTLE, Tex. (AP) — Eleven women in Newcastle are trading their purses for helmets.

They have formed what may be a first in Texas, an all-female volunteer fire fighting department. They have also created a new fire fighter position — designated babysitter.

"We are the backup for the regular rural fire department," says the group's chief, Mrs. Thetis Routon. "The men are hard to find during the day if the alarm goes off. We are not trying to beat them out of a job."

The group decided to organize a week after a fire gutted the home of Mrs. Irene Brunn in this north central Texas community.

"We decided we needed to get something done," said Mrs. Routon. "We want to be protected. We are almost without protection during the day. Only women are in town during the day."

By late May they had yet to fight their first fire, but they have aided the men's fire department in a gas station fire by pulling hose and directing traffic.

Each Tuesday night, the women have been meeting with the men's fire chief for instruction. Now, each woman can operate the 500-gallon pumper if needed.

"We have learned that our helmets are more important than our purses," said Mrs. Marjorie Lazzeri. "Our purses are the first thing to go. We don't ever carry them to the fire department, even for a meeting..."

"I have a jump suit on my bed every night so I'll be ready to jump in it and take off to a fire."

When the alarm rings, that's where Mrs. Mar Loy Kinser comes in.

She is the designated babysitter. She will keep the children at city hall when the women leave their home.

"I'll just be glad when I get used to the helmet," Mrs. Lazzeri said. "I feel like I have my head in a drum."

DEATH NOTICES

John W. Alpher:

PRAIRIE HOME — John William Alpher, 78, Prairie Home, died Sunday at Jamestown, Mo.

He was born Nov. 4, 1896 in Cooper County, son of Detrick and Caroline Firke Alpher. He married Emma E. Scott Nov. 7, 1927. She preceded him in death in 1970. He married Harriett Thornton Aug. 18, 1971. She survives of the home.

He was a member of Prairie Home First Baptist Church and worked as a farmer and stockman.

Other survivors include one daughter, Mrs. Jarrett Thompson, Jamestown; one sister, Mrs. Martha Knorp, Jamestown; one half sister, Mrs. Emma Mersey, New Franklin and one grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Prairie Home First Baptist Church with the Rev. Bill Casey officiating.

Burial will be in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, near California.

The family will receive friends Monday afternoon at Williams-Woodard Funeral Home, California.

Mrs. Frances Castle

GRAVOIS MILLS — Mrs. Frances Castle, 65, died Sunday at her home here.

Mrs. Castle was born Feb. 19, 1910, in St. Joseph, to David and Allie Pugh.

She had lived 25 years in this area, having owned a restaurant, motel and at one time, Jacob's Cave. She was active in the Business and Professional Women's Club and the Gravois Mills senior citizens organization. She retired in 1972.

Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Josephine Robinson of Independence.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Scrivner Chapel in Versailles with the Rev. Don Junker and the Rev. E. A. Barton officiating.

Burial will be Wednesday in Woodlawn Cemetery, Independence.

Friends may call at the funeral chapel after 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Firemen are hospitalized in base blaze

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Ten firemen were burned Sunday night when an acetylene tank exploded, sending a blast of hot air and flames through a door they were entering to fight a fire at Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base.

Eight of the men, all members of the base fire department, remained hospitalized this morning -- one in poor condition, the others in fair or good condition.

Capt. Brian Schaible of the base information office said the tank explosion at an emergency power plant was not the cause of the fire. The cause of the blaze was not determined, but Schaible said it was not a manmade fire and sabotage has been ruled out.

He said the firemen were responding to an automatic fire alarm and were entering the building through an outside door when the blast occurred.

Earlier, there had been some differences on whether there was an explosion. Police in Kansas City said Sunday night the men were injured when a tank exploded, but the base information office said there was no indication of an explosion.

Four of the injured were taken to the base hospital -- one of them was treated and released Sunday night and a second was dismissed this morning.

Burial will be in the Syracuse Cemetery.

The family will receive friends Monday at the Conn Funeral Home, Tipton.

Proposals on housing are asked

Proposals will be accepted beginning Tuesday by the Missouri Housing Development Commission (MDHC) for a $336,000 project designed to provide housing for low-income elderly persons in the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission.

The proposals, which will be accepted until July 31, will be to furnish a maximum of 105 living units by either constructing new ones or remodeling existing buildings or living quarters. No locations have been established yet.

Paula Schwach, Kansas City, MDHC executive director, said Monday plans call for the units to be developed in complexes of preferably at least 24 units each.

The income guidelines to be used for determining persons eligible for the additional federally-funded housing are based on 1970 census statistics. Certain statistics have been updated to account for the impact of inflation in the last five years, Miss Schwach explained.

The Rev. Marvin Albright, executive director of the Sedalia Housing Authority, who in the past has cited the need for additional local low-income elderly living units, was not available for comment Monday.

E. Glenn Lewis, chairman of the Housing Authority Board said Monday the authority has been in contact with Lester Shanks, Monsees Lake Estates, owner of Weathers Kort Apartments, 1900 West 10th, regarding the possibility of Shanks converting the apartments to qualify under the new housing program.

Additional details were not immediately available.

Frank Schwarzer, executive director of the planning commission, said Monday two private contractors in Sedalia had approached him seeking further information on construction specifications established by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which is channeling the federal funds through the MDHC.

Sedalia will compete for the funds with other cities in Pettis, Lafayette and Johnson Counties, which comprise the Show-Me Commission area, Schwarzer noted. Two other cities in the area, in addition to Sedalia, currently have federally-supported low-income elderly living complexes. They are Higginsville and Lexington.

Stopping the spread

Pettis County volunteer firemen and their brush Jeep move through a field of burning wheat stubble Sunday evening on a farm on West Main owned by Mrs. Tom Yeager. About 10 acres of the stubble was burned before firemen brought it under control. Felix Ash, owner of the wheat, said that he had been coming the field earlier Sunday and left the field about an hour and a half before the fire started. No value was set for the damage.

More Americans leave Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Only 22 U.S. government officials remained in Laos today as Communist-led demonstrators continued to harass Americans and to occupy U.S. facilities.

About 20 embassy staff members were flown out quietly over the weekend after youths and police of the Communist Pathet Lao took over the compound of the U.S. Embassy's support facility, a vacant American housing area and the U.S. Information Service library and offices.

An embassy spokesman said the Americans were flown to Bangkok, Thailand. He said some would return over the next week and others might or might not come back.

Those who left included 10 Marines of the embassy guard who took along American flags and flagstaffs. Three Marine guards and the embassy's military attaché, Lt. Col. Leonard Wood, are the only American military personnel left.

U.S. Charge d'Affaires Christian A. Chapman said he and the State Department were waiting to "see what happens in the next few days before taking further action."

The purpose of the latest anti-American moves was not clear. Since taking control of the coalition government in the past two months, the Pathet Lao has pressured the United States into terminating its once-vast aid program and sharply reducing the embassy staff. But Pathet Lao spokesmen continue to say that they want to maintain diplomatic relations with the United States and to receive U.S. economic aid.

In Bangkok, the new head of the National Student Center of Thailand said the organization — which claims 400,000 members — cancelled demonstrations that had been planned at U.S. bases for July 4. He said the students will hold only a rally at a university campus.

Kriangkamol Lachapairoj, a 23-year-old law student elected Saturday to head the powerful student organization, said he called off the demonstration for an immediate U.S. military withdrawal because "many people already know that the American government is pulling out its forces from Thailand and all will be out by next March."

The Thai government radio announced that a 39-man Thai delegation led by Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj arrived in Peking today for a five-day official visit. Kukrit — the first Thai government head to visit China in more than 30 years — and Premier Chou En-lai are to sign an agreement establishing diplomatic relations between their two countries.

Argument ends in death of two men

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. (AP) — Two men were killed during an argument Sunday night, and police said it was an apparent murder-suicide.

The victims were identified as Russell Gilstrap, 47, and Earl Williams, 65, both of Chillicothe.

Police said Gilstrap went to a house he rents in Chillicothe to a woman and encountered Williams on the front lawn. Police said the two men argued, although it was not known what they argued about.

Williams allegedly pulled a rifle and shot Gilstrap three times, then turned the weapon on himself.

Man's condition is listed as 'serious'

Mack Rhoads, 39, 401 West 23rd, who was injured Friday night in a two-truck accident on Highway 52, south of Windsor, was listed in serious condition Monday afternoon by a spokesman for the University of Kansas Medical Center, Kansas City, Kan.

Rhoads suffered third-degree burns over 80 per cent of his body when the truck he was driving collided with a truck driven by Randall Harvey, 56, Windsor. Rhoads' truck caught fire following the collision.

Man in jail awaiting filing of charges

A Sedalia man remained in jail at noon Monday awaiting the filing of a charge of stealing under $50.

Jackie D. Moore, 20, 522 South Washington, was arrested at 11 p.m. Sunday near Sixth and Ohio. Moore allegedly had three cases of ice cream in his possession.

Police discovered a truck at Beatrice Foods Co., 111 West Fifth, had been broken into and ice cream taken from it.

In other police news, Bertha C. Young, 1611 East Broadway, reported the theft of her billfold and rings while she was at the Missouri Bowl, 105 South Missouri, between 6 p.m. Friday and 1:30 a.m. Saturday. She told police that she had put her purse on the ice machine at the business and returned to find the items missing. A diamond ring set, valued at $400, and a wedding band, valued at $100, were reported taken.

Dan Wolf, 1417 West 11th, vice president of Wolf Construction, reported the theft of two citizen band radios and antennas from two of the company's trucks parked at 204 North Mill, Friday night. Value for the items was placed at $378.

Blossom-end rot on tomatoes is often most severe on plants that have grown rapidly and luxuriantly during the early part of the season. As the weather becomes hotter and drier, plants are suddenly under more stress, and if the dry period is prolonged, young fruit develops the problem. First sign is a small water-soaked spot at the blossom-end.

In addition to abrupt changes in moisture, other conditions can cause or add to the severity of the problem. These include excess fertilization, type of fertilizer, or extreme fluctuation in soil moisture.

Most important in combating the problem is to maintain uniform soil moisture. In a garden where water is easily available, the problem is fairly easy to control. Occasional thorough waterings help considerably. However, avoid frequent light waterings. Thoroughly soak the soil. Then, after several days when the surface has dried, but there is still moisture evident an inch beneath the surface, another watering should be given if no rainfall has occurred.

Where irrigation is not possible, mulches can help keep soil moisture more uniform as well as help the soil retain moisture for longer periods. Also, avoid any practices that might injure roots. Avoid deep cultivation. Scrape the surface of the soil only enough to remove weeds.

Even when moisture conditions are adequate, blossom-end rot sometimes develops. This may be due to fertility levels, or perhaps to the type of fertilizer used. Excess nitrogen and potassium fertilization, as well as excesses of soluble ammonium, magnesium or sodium, add to the problem. When soluble calcium levels are low, the severity of the disease increases.

Grasshoppers
Try to control hoppers while they are still on the hatching beds. The eggs are laid along fence rows, ditch banks, pastures, or waste land areas, and the young hoppers stay on the beds for several days after hatching. Be on the lookout for these hatching areas during the late spring and spray them immediately when found.

Control is much easier to get at and much less expensive if it is done early. It takes less insecticide to kill young hoppers and much less area needs to be sprayed.

Sod webworm
Buff colored moths flying over your lawn are the sod webworms moth laying eggs. Plan to treat your lawn with diazinon. There will be a special generation of moths in July and a third during late August or early September.

The webworm larvae are a gray worm with small brown spots over the back and a black head. They are about an inch long when they mature and they live for about four weeks as a larvae. The worms live in a silken lined burrow in the thatch of the lawn. Brown spots appear in the lawn when the worms are numerous, usually accompanying a large number of robins which feed on the larvae.

Beans after wheat
Because of the "short day effect" speeding up soybean maturity in the fall, a full season variety such as Clark-63 or Williams, will ripen only a few days after the normal time and only a few days after the earlier maturity varieties. The result will be better yields than if a short season variety is used.

What this is also saying is that if you don't already have your regular planting made, use a full season variety for more yield.

Renew strawberries
The best time to get your strawberry plants prepared for next year's crop is immediately after harvest. Without reworking, or "renewing," yield and size of berries usually get progressively smaller each season. Renovation of the planting includes mowing, thinning, fertilizing and weeding.

Before beginning the process of renewing an old bed, decide if it is really worthwhile. If plants are growing poorly, are diseased or have a heavy infestation of perennial weeds, it may be necessary to dig out the entire planting and start with new, clean plants in the fall or early spring next season.

Occasionally an old bed will contain vigorous plants that do not fruit. This happens when some seeds from berries left in the plot germinate. Many of these seedlings grow rapidly and run freely. As a result, they often crowd out the desired varieties. If so, the bed should be dug up and replaced.

If the bed condition is good and the above problems are now apparent, the bed may be renewed. The first step in renewal may be mowing. Cutting off leaves is not always necessary, but if the planting has a severe infestation of insects or disease, mow the patch to remove diseased leaves. Destroy the infected leaves.

When leaf diseases are a problem, it may be beneficial to give the patch a spray of captan after renovation and again in two weeks. If leaf problems are not apparent, it is not necessary to mow off the leaves.

The most important part of renewal is thinning. Young plants produce the most and largest berries. At this time narrow down the rows. A healthy band of plants 6 to 10 inches wide will provide abundant runner plants that will develop in a well prepared area next to them. These new vigorous runner plants produce the main portion of the crop next year. About 30 inches should be allowed to remain open between these bands of old plants.

If the planting is still fairly new, it may only be necessary to clean out some runners to keep the planting from becoming too dense. This means going through the bed now, and again in early August, to thin the planting to five or seven plants per square foot.

Fertilizers are also beneficial if applied during the renewal process. If soils are of good fertility, only nitrogen may be necessary at this time. Use about one pound of ammonium nitrate per 100 feet of row. A complete fertilizer such as a 5-10-5 might be used, especially if the soil is known to be low in overall fertility. Apply about 5 lbs. per 100 feet of row. Apply fertilizer before the rows are thinned or worked over. The fertilizer will then be worked into the soil when thinning and tillage operations are done.

Another fertilization may be given in early August just as flower buds for next year's crop are developing. Always water well after fertilizer applications.

Weeds may become a serious problem in strawberries. There is no currently available herbicide for the home gardener to control established grasses and broad-leaved weeds in strawberries. All established weeds should be removed during cultivation and thinning. After this is complete, the herbicide dacthal may be used in the bed to prevent the establishment of new seedling weeds. It will be effective for 8 to 10 weeks, after which the treatment should be repeated.

Only about 50 to 60 California condors can still be found in the Southern Sierra Nevada and coast range.

Little choice in election

PRAIA, Cape Verde Islands (AP) — "Vote on June 30" say the posters plastered around the Cape Verde islands.

The posters don't say who to vote for because they don't need to. Only the PAIGC — the Party for the Independence of Guinea-Bissau and Cape Verde — is running candidates in the election today of a 56-member National Assembly.

The new lawmakers' first task will be to write a constitution in the next three months. Meanwhile, the nine little islands almost 400 miles off West Africa and their 300,000 people get their independence Saturday after 500 years of Portuguese rule.

If things go the way the PAIGC intends, the assembly will vote in a few months to become part of Guinea-Bissau, the former Portuguese colony on the West African bulge that got its independence last September. Several of the assembly candidates fought against the Portuguese in Guinea-Bissau's guerrilla war for independence.

The PAIGC says a big turnout today will constitute an endorsement of union with Guinea-Bissau. The party claims that opposition among wealthier Cape Verdeans to the linkup melted away following two general strikes and riots in support of the PAIGC. But there is some anxiety at the party's headquarters that the response from the 130,000 eligible voters may not be overwhelming.

The results will not be known until Wednesday or Thursday. The assembly will meet for the first time Friday in Praia, which will remain the capital after independence.

4-H livestock show and sale dates are set

The Pettis County 4-H Livestock Show and Sale will be held July 15 at the Sheep Pavilion on the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

The swine exhibition begins at 9:30 a.m. and will be followed by a dairy and sheep show. The 4-H beef show will be held at 12:30 p.m.

The annual 4-H steer and market hog auction will begin at 7 p.m. in the Youth Center Building on the fairgrounds.

In other news, the annual 4-H Horsemanship Round-up will be held at 9 a.m. July 19 in the Coliseum on the fairgrounds.

Food stamp program ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, having finished its three-month review of Agriculture Department proposals to revise the food-stamp program, has prepared a proposal to Congress, informed sources say.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz had sent President Ford the original proposals March 31, so that the administration could respond to a unanimous Feb. 5 Senate request for specific, basic reforms of the program.

The administration's response, termed "a pallid review of the last six years with no advocacy positions," comes just under the June 30 deadline.

Objections that "that's not what we asked for" already were being heard around Senate offices late last week as word circulated of infighting between the White House Domestic Council and the Office of Management and Budget over the proposals. OMB's position won with Ford and Butz and the USDA package was reduced to "just another alternative," the sources said.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., sponsor of the Senate resolution, Select Nutrition Committee Chairman George McGovern, D-S.D., and others have been counting on the response to use as the framework later this summer when Senate and House panels begin full reviews of the $5-billion-a-year, 20-million-participant food-stamp program.

Already before the panels are a series of patchwork bills — including one from McGovern — and a major bill of the same scope as an earlier draft of the USDA response but sponsored by some conservatives.

The original USDA proposal would have instituted an "everyone is equal" system using percentages of gross income — in effect, a standard deduction of 30 per cent for all applicants — to determine who was eligible for the coupons.

It would have replaced a court-invalidated pricing system used in connection with a complicated array of itemized deductions that have allowed millions with incomes of $8,000 or more to legally qualify for stamps while hurting the neediest families, USDA and private analysts have said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thanks to strong, weatheraided prospects in Michigan and other Great Lakes states, tart-cherry production this year could reach 157,280 tons, up 19 per cent from last year, Agriculture Department surveyors say.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 167-page fiscal-year end tables of "Agricultural Prices," out last week for 1974, is crammed not only with prices received for all crops and stock but also what farmers pay for seeds, crankcase oil, tractors and most other production inputs.

The statistics are valued for planning purposes, economic models and the like by business, government and farmers themselves.

Also included are the prices farm families pay in their "roles" as consumers, just like urbanites and their nonfarming rural neighbors, buying appliances, food and drink and clothes.

The report duly records, by state and calendar quarters: the cost of slips, panty girdles, panties from "man-made" fibers, hose, panthoshe and nightgowns, for women. For men, the related categories detailed are tee-shirts, underwear shorts and thermal knit long-johns.

Member

Glenn Coffey, Lincoln, is a member of the resolutions committee for the annual MFA State Convention scheduled for Aug. 4 in Columbia. The panel has already met and drafted tentative resolutions. They will meet again Aug. 3 to consider any changes and make recommendations to the general convention.

Storm victims begin new life

TRACY, Minn. (AP) — Bob and Lavonna Radke, turned into amputees after being trapped in the "blizzard of the century," are rebuilding their lives together, aiming for a home of their own.

The young couple was stranded in an automobile for 36 hours last January during a vicious snow storm the National Weather Service called the worst of the century. Their legs were so badly frozen that each of them had to have both legs amputated above the knees.

"Sometimes we can't remember what is fact or fancy of that time in the blizzard," Bob said.

The couple spent three months in St. Paul-Ramsey Hospital and then moved in with Bob's parents, Harold and Kay Radke.

"Harold and I decided that the kids needed to start doing things to help themselves. That's part of their therapy," said the elder Mrs. Radke.

So Bob, 23, is learning the car repair business from his father, and Lavonna, 26, is learning how to do dishes and operate a vacuum cleaner again — this time in wheelchairs.

Both Bob and Lavonna hope to be fitted soon with artificial legs.

"Like Humpty Dumpty, I have to try and stand on my stumps and balance, so I won't fall either way. That's the first step toward getting fit with artificial legs," said Lavonna.

The couple had been married just six months when the storm struck, so they say they need time to again learn living alone together.

"Maybe that will be the real story — how we are able to live day by day without someone to push or carry or help us," Bob said, with Lavonna adding: "In our own place again."

Bus is hijacked

MONTVILLE, Conn. (AP) — "He was going wild and everybody thought he was going to kill us," said Elyce Sokoll, a passenger on a Greyhound bus that was hijacked by a man who drove the vehicle about 40 miles before ramming into two police cars.

The hijacker said "things like he was the reincarnation of John F. Kennedy and he was out to rule the world," Miss Sokoll said.

Police charged Joseph Peppers, 28, of Far Rockaway, N.Y., with theft of a motor vehicle, reckless driving, three counts of second-degree assault and two counts of second-degree larceny in connection with the hijacking on Sunday.

Bond was set at $10,000, and Peppers was sent to Norwich Hospital, a state mental institution, for examination.

After Peppers scuffled with several passengers, the driver and all passengers except Peppers got off the Providence, R.I., to New York City bus in Montville. Then Peppers took the wheel and drove the bus down Interstate 95, police said.

State and local police gave chase, and about half an hour later, at the Branford toll station, the bus smashed through a police roadblock and into two unoccupied police cruisers, authorities said.

The bus then veered off the highway into a wooded area and stopped. The vehicle was heavily damaged, but Peppers was uninjured.

Since the ordinary consumer's concern for meat begins and ends with what's on his plate at dinner time, the entire meat industry — from the producer on the farm to the retailer in the city — must concern itself with the end product on the dinner plate, too.

Beef and pork are the big factors in the meat trade, while veal and lamb and/or mutton are of much less consequence. The average American consumed about 114 pounds of beef and 73 pounds of pork in 1971. Per capita consumption of veal, down drastically from what it used to be, was only about 2.7 pounds, and lamb and mutton was around 3.2 pounds.

It is "cuts" of meat that the consumer ordinarily buys, usually periodically throughout the year as he needs them. Cuts come from various parts of the animal's carcass, and they vary in price according to supply and demand.

Benjamin Franklin was so much the most familiar American figure to the English during the Revolutionary War that the cagey Staffordshire potters got out a statuette of him and sold it under three titles: B. Franklin, G. Washington (nobody knew what he looked like) and "Old English Country Gentleman." The World Almanac recalls.

What exactly IS our foreign policy?

By ROY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON — It is clear to almost everyone except President Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger that the world has changed.

Cromley

emergence of an isolationist Congress.

Yet, except for some all-is-well lip service to our existing treaties and our allies, and a fleeting Kissinger reference to the necessity of limiting our future commitments to governments which have the backing of the people and are responsible to their interests, neither Mr. Ford nor surrogate Kissinger seem to have recognized the changes which have taken place.

Mr. Ford inherited a stack of defense treaties and understandings from past administrations. A sizable number require, or seem to require, the United States to defend one or another invaded ally with arms, money and U.S. troops.

The wisdom of some of these treaties has been brought into question.

The willingness of Congress to allow these commitments to be honored effectively is now also in doubt.

Mr. Ford has, as noted above, reassured our allies in public and private talks. But he has not explored with Congress what it is willing to do. Nor with the Pentagon on what it can do.

Mr. Ford has not redefined nor clarified our commitments. We live in a fog of uncertainty which could lead to disaster.

That is not all. We do not know Mr. Ford's Soviet policy. Detente is a hope. It means all things to all men.

I know of no one in this government who can explain to me in anything but meaningless generalities our policy toward China. Or Formosa. Or India. Or Thailand. Or South Korea. Or Bangladesh. Or Laos. Or Cambodia. Or Vietnam. Or the Philippines.

We have most certainly no policy on Latin America. For that matter, we haven't had once since the Monroe Doctrine, though there have been beautiful, if empty, statements from time to time by one president or another. Witness the "Alliance for Progress."

The President's weak foreign policy can be traced back to Mr. Ford himself. It is true he has been hamstrung more than once by a negative Congress. But he has consistently failed to put a halter on Dr. Kissinger, an irrepressible dilettante who does not do his homework. And two decades in Congress apparently did not give Mr. Ford the background or confidence to run his own show.

This last is his most severe handicap.

For there is no way out. An American president must be his own secretary of state.

He can, and should, have a working secretary to give advice and to carry out his will efficiently.

He must have a personal adviser in the White House to act as gadfly and sounding board. And to do his personal research, run the National Security Council working group and oversee the Central Intelligence Agency in detail.

But in the end, as almost every occupant of the White House has known, or learned to his sorrow, the president himself must take command.

This, Mr. Ford has not done — except on occasion.

President has grown in office

By TOM TIEDE
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — At the time of his appointment to the presidency, there were those who believed Jerry Ford was Richard Nixon's last dirty trick on America. When he traveled to Japan in November, as a state dinner wearing — gad — an ascot, winged collar and trousers three inches up his ankles. Protocol people said they could only assume his tailor was a former football coach from the University of Michigan.

Tiede

Things change, including people and attitudes. Nelson Rockefeller was saying the other day that one of the best unreported stories in Washington is "how this President has grown in office." Quite right. No longer is Ford the Emmett Kelly of the White House tent; far from it, he has taken charge of his amazing fate to an extent even his critics agree is good for the nation. Ford is not yet totally comfortable behind the seal of the big eagle. He was overheard recently saying this to an aide about Henry Kissinger: "How many times do I have to tell you he is not the president — I am the president!" Yet there is no longer really any doubt of that. Ford has organized himself and his staff — there are more than 500 people on the immediate Ford staff — to project an organizational air of confidence, supremacy and sophistication.

The sophistication may be the least strong of these virtues, if perhaps somewhat on purpose. "We don't want to appear too smooth," says a White House staffer. "That's not the President's style. If I can speak for myself, and not for him, I have the impression we are trying to convey the idea we are capable, but human. We admit we make mistakes — not too many, however."

The mistakes of the Ford administration — at least those of an obvious nature — have, in fact, fallen off considerably since the early days of bumbling and fumbling. Improper staff structuring and shoddy communications early on made it not only possible but likely that Ford could invite a Texas businessman to the White House for an economics discussion never scheduled and wish Rep. Leonor Sullivan of Missouri a happy retirement, even though she was not retiring. With his ship more secure, Ford's gaffs have diminished. He no longer vetoes legislation indiscriminately, for one thing — congressional Republican leaders have driven home to the President the political value of choosing vetoes that have the best chance of being sustained.

Ford's handling of congressional affairs, actually, accounts in large part for his evolution in office. A child of the House himself, as a friend in that body says, "he knows Congress makes a convenient scapegoat." Unable to force his own legislative will on the members — he is not that strong a president yet — Ford sees to it that they, not he, be blamed for do-nothingness.

Congress cooperates in this often enough, by doing nothing, but Ford presses the point by force of his middle-America personality. In less than a year in office, the President has sold the nation the idea that the domestic policy of Congress is to spend and its foreign policy is to surrender — all the while his own stock with countrymen has been rising.

That stock is now 51 per cent positive, according to a recent opinion poll. Largely because many Americans believe Ford to be, although dull as a Michigan stump, a common sense guy. Mayaguez. Vetos of big spending bills. Solid. If he has image drawbacks, says political scientist James David Barber, "they are not rooted in his character." Here is a man so unassuming he once got up at a rally to tell the same bad joke that was told by the man who introduced him. Yet, according to aide Robert Hartman, when Ford was informed of the Nixon enemy list he said in Lincolnian language that: "Any man who can't keep his enemies in his head has too many enemies."

It may be, of course, that those who perceive a growth in Jerry Ford the President are overly optimistic, that any addition to zero is noticeable but not necessarily significant. But at the least, and indisputably, the President by accident has handled himself well and proven again that pedestrianism is often its own dignity.

One new approach on college costs

It certainly comes as no news to parents of college-bound and based students that the cost of higher education has been getting increasingly higher in recent years — and at a more rapid rate than inflation has been jacking up prices in general.

That's the bad news, and even worse is that there is nothing in the economy's prolonged inflation-recession dilemma to indicate any forthcoming change in this particular trend.

Both institutions and individuals are caught in the bind. Once flush or at least satisfactorily solvent schools find endowments and legislative appropriations don't go as far or aren't forthcoming in the amounts required.

Higher education remains a largely subsidized public activity. But inevitably the impact of higher costs has been passed on to the student population.

Various government assistance programs, expanded in recent years, and institutional scholarships help. But it can still be tough going.

Good news in such a situation is any way to increase financial resources available to students, such as the program a Philadelphia bank has initiated which may be described as a do-it-yourself scholarship program for its investors.

Under the First Pennsylvania Bank plan, purchase of a certificate of deposit also establishes a college scholarship. The CD pays the investor 5.5 per cent annual compound interest. The scholarship money comes from the difference between this rate and the maximum—7.25 per cent—the bank is permitted to pay on four-year certificates.

Scholarships are payable to any accredited institution of higher learning in the United States when the certificates are purchased. They range in size from $350 with a $5,000 CD up to $7,000 for a $100,000 purchase.

While the certificates are available to individual purchasers, the program is especially tailored for businesses, church, fraternal and similar organizations which may wish to put their reserve funds to work for the children of their employees or members.

The bank is looking for something like $20 million to be invested in the program, which adds up to a lot of good scholarship news. (NEA)

Merry-go-round

Capitol Hill spies courtesy of KGB

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — While CIA officials squirm under the klieg lights on Capitol Hill, Soviet KGB agents are operating in the shadows of the same congressional corridors.

In the past few years, the KGB has stepped up its activities on the Hill. KGB operatives in a dozen guises have been slipping around to see key Congressmen and their aides.

Many congressional aides, as political appointees, are granted access to secret documents after no more than a cursory background check. Their leaks, although unwitting, could be serious.

Secret government files identify diplomat Boris Solomatin as the KGB "residentura," or operating chief, who first recognized how much valuable intelligence is available on Capitol Hill.

Until his recent departure, he was the deputy Soviet envoy at the United Nations. His replacement, although expected soon, hasn't arrived.

Under Solomatin, the KGB "residentura" in Washington has been Dmitri Yakushkin, the brilliant Soviet embassy counselor. His KGB rank, according to the secret files, makes him second in power only to amiable Ambassador Anatoli Dobrynin.

The files allege that Yakushkin directs a Washington spy ring, which employs diplomats, newsmen and sympathizers from countries friendly to the United States. Visiting delegations from Russia also are loaded with KGB experts, who know how to spot useful intelligence.

Officials indicate that Yakushkin concentrates on Capitol Hill where information is abundant and security is lax.

One of the Soviets' most effective spies on Capitol Hill was pretty Galina Utekhina, a modish cultural attaché, who moved in congressional circles and even began using prominent figures on the Hill. The files identified her as a KGB Mata Hari, a fact which we revealed in a 1970 column. She quickly returned to Moscow.

The KGB appears to be most interested, according to officials, in intelligence about U.S.-China relations, SALT disarmament talks, MIRV missiles and U.S. computer technology.

The KGB reportedly also helps orchestrate the Soviet lobbying effort on Capitol Hill. Soviet diplomats, academics, economists and others have sought particularly to persuade Congress to grant the Soviet Union "most favored nation" trading status.

A favorite KGB approach is through contacts from other countries. In the secret files, they are referred to as "third party nationals." Those who quietly lobby for Soviet views are called "agents of influence."

The KGB ringers in visiting delegations may be technological experts, who can quickly size up a piece of U.S. equipment. Or they may be personnel experts, who sound out sympathetic Americans for recruitment as informants. This is called "talent spotting."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., has quoted "very, very good sources," meanwhile, as alleging that foreign agents have actually infiltrated congressional offices. Our sources said the secret files contain no evidence that any members of Congress, nor their employees, are spies.

Footnote: Yakushkin never returned our calls. A Soviet spokesman, however, said "I don't think it's true" that Yakushkin is a KGB spy chief. The spokesman added: "You are interfering in a very sensitive field."

ONASSIS CRASH: Sources close to the late Aristotle Onassis have told us that he privately blamed himself for his son's death in a 1973 plane crash.

The son, Alexander, had wanted to install some new parts and check out the plane. Because this had been neglected, say our sources, Aristotle Onassis felt personally responsible for the crash.

To relieve his conscience, he tried desperately to come up with evidence that the plane had been sabotaged, and therefore, that someone else had caused the accident. He offered a $500,000 reward for proof that the plane had been sabotaged. But there were no takers.

We contacted the pilot of the fatal flight, Don McCusker of Westerville, Ohio, who survived the crash without any permanent injuries. He said an investigation had established that the ailerons used to steer the plane had been misconnected. A check-out flight, he said, would have detected this.

Although the accident was caused by a defect in the plane, he still faces manslaughter charges in Greece. His trial has been scheduled for Nov. 18.

He has been unable to contact heiress Christina Onassis, however, for help in meeting his expenses and settling the case.

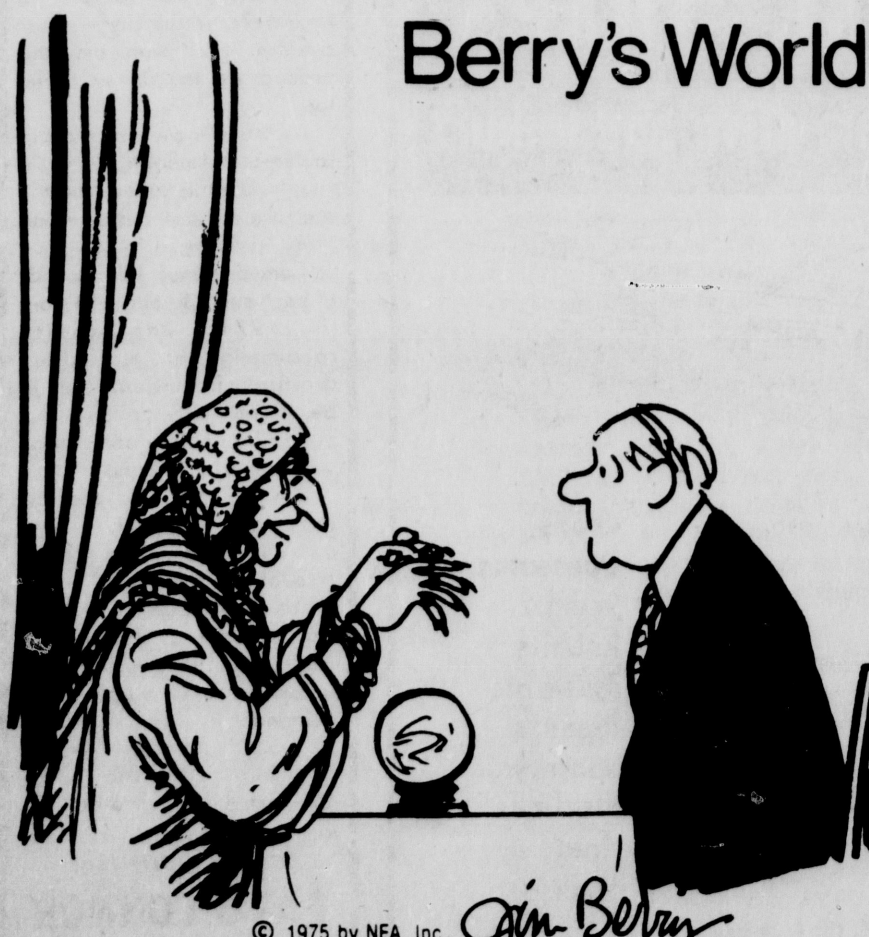

LANGUAGE DISCRIMINATION: The State Department's prestigious Foreign Service Institute, which trains American diplomats in foreign languages, is struggling with a discrimination scandal.

On the theory that democracy begins at home, Spanish-speaking instructors have complained they must wait twice as long for promotions as teachers of such exotic tongues as Hindi, Hungarian and Swahili.

Instructors in German, French and other common tongues also are discriminated against, our investigation shows.

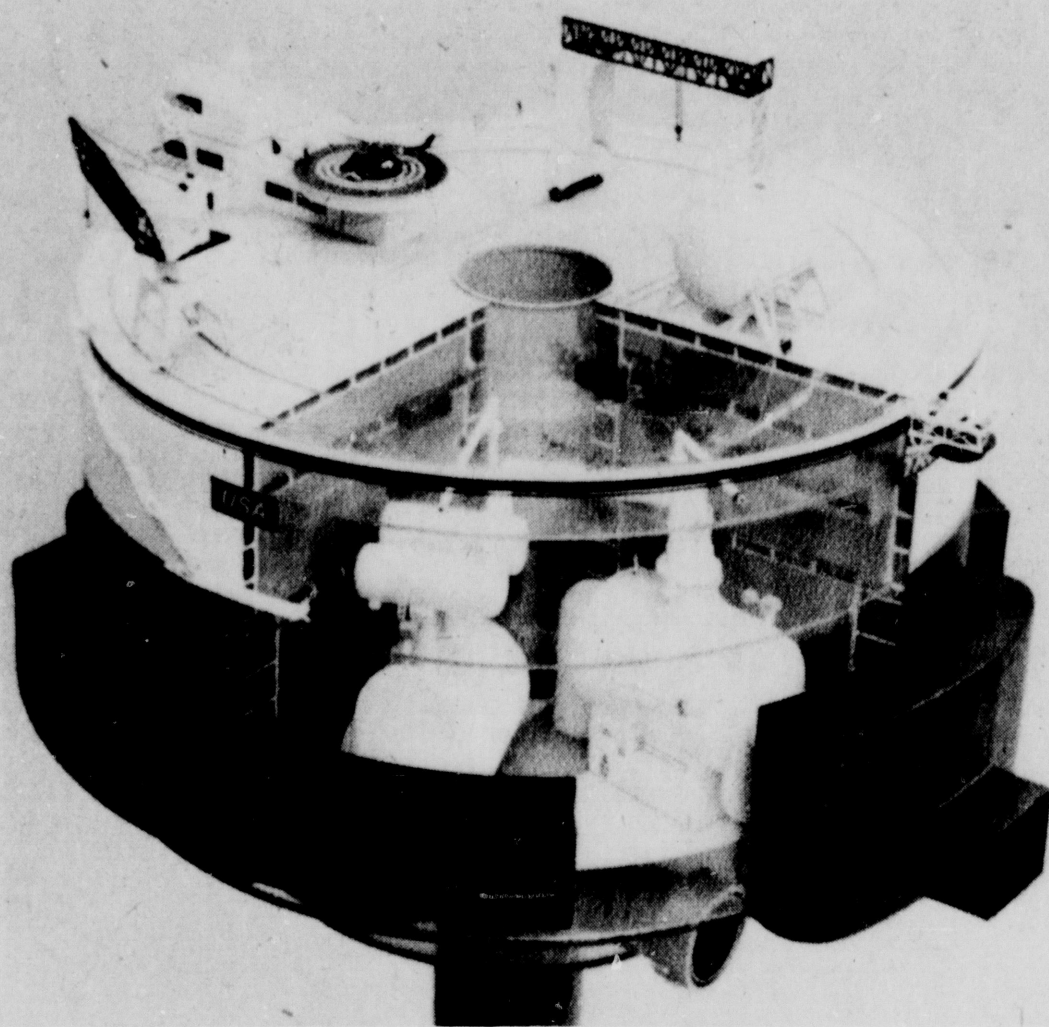

The institute's dean, James Frith, concedes there is unhappiness, but adds: "It's a matter of supply and demand."

Traffic deaths climb to five in Missouri

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Five traffic deaths in Missouri were reported by the highway patrol over the weekend.

Everett Earl Alm, 39, Kirksville, died Sunday when a tractor he was driving down a hill went off a curve and overturned. The accident occurred on an unmarked gravel road southwest of Kirksville.

Herbert William Reed, 61, Crestwood, Mo., was killed and two persons were injured seriously Saturday in a two-car collision near Owensville, about 75 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Earlier Saturday, a van and camping trailer occupied by a Grandville, Mich., family overturned on Interstate 44 about 70 miles southwest of St. Louis, apparently after being caught in a turbulence created by a passing tractor-trailer unit. Annette Hoelsem, 12, was killed in the accident and her parents, two brothers and two sisters were injured.

Two persons were killed Friday night.

Gail Hopke, 12, Vandalia, Mo., died and her brother, DeWayne Allen Hopke, 13, was injured when a motor scooter they were riding was involved in a collision with an auto near their home.

Fred Casillas, 61, Kennett, died in a two-car accident on Missouri 25 near Holcomb in the Bootheel.

Syndicated columnist remains in hospital

RENO, Nev. (AP) - Syndicated New York columnist Robert Considine remains hospitalized in satisfactory condition with injuries he received in a balloon race.

Considine, 68, hurt his back Saturday when the balloon got tangled in a tree, then was caught by a gust of wind and slammed into an embankment.

Considine said he entered the balloon race through Washoe Valley, about 10 miles from here, "because I thought it would be a good idea for a columnist."

But once in production, he said, the expense could likely be brought down to about $1,000 per megawatt, which "compares very favorably with conventional plants," he said.

One factor in placing the plants is that they must be located where the temperature difference — or vertical temperature gradient, as it is known to scientists — is at least 39 degrees.

Some places under consideration are the Gulf of Mexico, the Caribbean and off the southwest coast of Mexico.

Getting the power from the station to where it is needed is still being studied. Cables could take the electricity to shore.

Alcohol won't help diabetes

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 37 years old and have had diabetes since 1968. I have been going to several doctors, always trying to avoid the insulin injections which I fear fiercely. I have been on pills to control my blood glucose.

The doctor I am seeing now says there is only one thing left to do if this doesn't bring the blood sugar down, and that is the needle. I don't want to start that because I will have to take it the rest of my life.

Since October my blood test results have been 320, 289, and 283. Then I joined Weight Watchers and from December 26 to January 31 it dropped to 269.

Now I am having trouble with my driver's license. The doctor won't sign a statement on uncontrolled diabetes. I asked him what my blood sugar must be before he will sign the card so I could get my license back and he said 120. Don't you think this is unfair? I have had this for seven years and not had any dizzy spells or blacking out. Do you think I should go to some other doctor who might give me a better break?

You had a column once that mentioned a certain kind of alcohol which would drop the blood sugar. What was it?

Also, is losing weight a definite answer to a safe and sure way of bringing the blood sugar down? Or is there still a possibility of having to take insulin? Is being depressed and losing your temper connected with diabetes?

Dear Reader — The kind of alcohol that drops blood sugar is the kind you mix in cocktails or get in beer. It acts by chemically tying up an important enzyme in the liver (NAD) used to convert food stores to glucose. It won't help you though, and will make your diabetic problem worse. I don't approve of alcohol for diabetics.

I do approve of your effort to lose weight, if you have any obesity problem at all. Many overweight women will have normal blood sugar tests after they get down to normal weight. I usually consider a good diet and correction of any obesity the first step in treatment of the obese patient with high blood sugar levels. Diet alone usually is as useful as the pills. It requires more effort, but if you want to avoid that needle, I'd recommend being conscientious about getting your weight under control.

Exercise also lowers blood sugar. A good exercise program, done sensibly, might help with your diet program. Those high blood sugar levels you have indicate that the liver is converting more food to glucose than your body uses, not just that you have a problem in absorbing too much sugar.

Severe diabetics may still need insulin even when they are not obese. They have a different problem and lose enormous amounts of calories through the excess glucose eliminated in the urine, unless they are properly controlled by insulin.

I'm sure your doctor is trying to encourage you to do the best thing for your overall health. You can help by following a good program and working hard on the diet aspects of your problem.

Helicopter crash at carnival injures one man

OLIVETTE, Mo. (AP) - A St. Louis County man was reported in satisfactory condition Sunday following the crash of an excursion helicopter at a carnival, police said.

Bill Knight, 27, was a passenger in the copter, which plunged to the ground after its engine stopped while it hovered about 10 feet off the ground. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital.

Witnesses said the craft, which fell on its side, was attempting to land when the mishap occurred. The copter had been providing rides for patrons of the City of Olivette Summerfest.

The pilot, Paul Dillinger, 31, of St. Peters, and another passenger, George Robinson, 31, of St. Louis County, were treated at St. Louis County Hospital.

McGovern thinking of another race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern, who lost by a landslide as the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee, is weighing the option of running again for president in 1976.

In a letter sent last week to fewer than 50 of his key 1972 supporters, McGovern asked their advice on three options he is considering, including one of becoming a presidential contender.

However, the South Dakota Democrat said that, "as things stand now, I do not intend to become a candidate."

The other options listed in the letter were endorsing a liberal candidate or making a statement specifying what potential candidate would be unacceptable to him.

After his hard-fought battle for re-election to the Senate last year, McGovern said, "I am not going to be a candidate in 1976" for the presidency.

The letter sent last week said, "I am seeking your candid advice on a personal, confidential basis as to the best role I can play. Some have suggested that I endorse one of the presidential candidates in order to help a strong liberal emerge. Is this a good idea? What do you think of the present candidates?"

"Others have urged I make clear now who is unacceptable as the Democratic presidential nominee — in short, that I identify certain candidates with whom we fundamentally disagree on either domestic or foreign questions."

"Finally, others are calling on me to consider entering the race myself and to enter primaries in states such as Wisconsin, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and New York."

An aide to McGovern who confirmed that the letter had been sent said that the option of becoming a presidential candidate "is not one he's thinking of very strongly."

McGovern carried only Massachusetts and the District of Columbia in his 1972 run against President Richard M. Nixon.

In his letter, McGovern said the Democrats are "failing to exert strong, effective leadership" in Congress. He warned against the Democrats' adopting a "no-issues, centrist response" and said only the election of a liberal Democratic president could end the stalemate in government.

Water temperatures may help in energy problem

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Temperature differences in ocean water could spin the turbines of floating power stations to help meet America's energy needs, a research company says.

It's a "something-for-nothing" idea, since the energy is already there: heat from the sun held in the oceans' waters.

By the year 2000, said Art Griffin of TRW Systems Inc., ocean energy could provide some 6 per cent of the country's total need. And the process could also be used to make ammonia, an important component of fertilizer which is getting increasingly scarcer.

The idea is nearly a century old, but not until recently did it seem possible to extract ocean power at a cost comparable to conventional generating methods, says Griffin.

Now, the concept is being studied by three teams of researchers: the TRW-led team; one at the University of Massachusetts and one at Carnegie-Mellon University.

Their proposals will be considered by the Energy Research Development Administration, which is looking for alternative sources of energy such as solar, geothermal and ocean power. Then perhaps the go-ahead will be given to build a test project.

As TRW conceives them, the power stations would be 17-story concrete cylinders, wide as a football field, floating with more than half their height underwater.

Pumps would take in surface water, which might be as warm as 80 degrees in semitropical areas, as well as colder water from 4,000 feet or so below the surface.

The latter, as much as 45 degrees colder than at the surface, would be pumped up through a large plastic tube like a giant drinking-straw.

The hot and cold water would be used to alternately heat and cool ammonia circulated continuously through a system of pipes.

As it was heated and compressed, the ammonia would turn into a gas, like steam, which would spin turbine wheels to generate power. Then it would be cooled and condensed back. "All you pay for is the equipment." That would be expensive at first; it would cost about $210 million to build a prototype station to churn out 100 megawatts.

But once in production, he said, the expense could likely be brought down to about $1,000 per megawatt, which "compares very favorably with conventional plants," he said.

One factor in placing the plants is that they must be located where the temperature difference — or vertical temperature gradient, as it is known to scientists — is at least 39 degrees.

Some places under consideration are the Gulf of Mexico, the Caribbean and off the southwest coast of Mexico.

Getting the power from the station to where it is needed is still being studied. Cables could take the electricity to shore.

Royals fall, 3-1

Chisox push streak to eight straight

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Chuck Tanner can be excused for being exuberant, what with his Chicago White Sox riding an eight-game winning streak.

"Bill Melton is playing the greatest ball of his career right now," said Tanner after Melton's two-run homer led the White Sox to a 3-1 triumph over Kansas City Royals Sunday.

"Melton is doing it all," said Tanner, "in the field and at the plate. He's doing everything well."

Melton laughed a little when informed of Tanner's statement.

"That's the way it goes when you're winning," he said. "When you win you can do no wrong, but when you're losing, you can be playing great ball but it goes unnoticed."

"You know, when we came home off that road trip, I got booed in this ballpark for the first time. It shocked me because in the last few games of that road trip I got it going and put 30 points on my average. But we had been losing, so the fans booed."

After another slow start this season, Melton is ripping the ball. In the last 17 games he has had 19 hits in 57 at bats, a .333 clip which includes three home runs. He has finally boosted his average to .240.

"I'm convinced that my slow starts are psychological," said Melton. "Early in the season it is cold and the wind is usually blowing in. So you say to yourself 'I really have to hit the ball to get it out of here.' As a result you start pressing and everything goes wrong."

"Before you know it you don't have many home runs and your average is down to nothing. Then you try to get straightened out and start climbing little by little."

Melton's two-run homer in the third inning was his sixth of the season and provided all the runs Jim Kaat and reliever Dave Hamilton needed to sweep the three-game series from the Royals.

The triumph was over Paul Splittorff, who in the last two seasons had piled up a 9-1 record against Chicago. He was 4-1 last year and 5-0 in 1973.

Still, all the Sox managed off Splittorff were five hits but they made them count. Bucky Dent doubled before Melton's homer and in the fourth, Jorge Orta singled, stole second, continued to third on a throwing error and scored on Brian Downing's squeeze bunt.

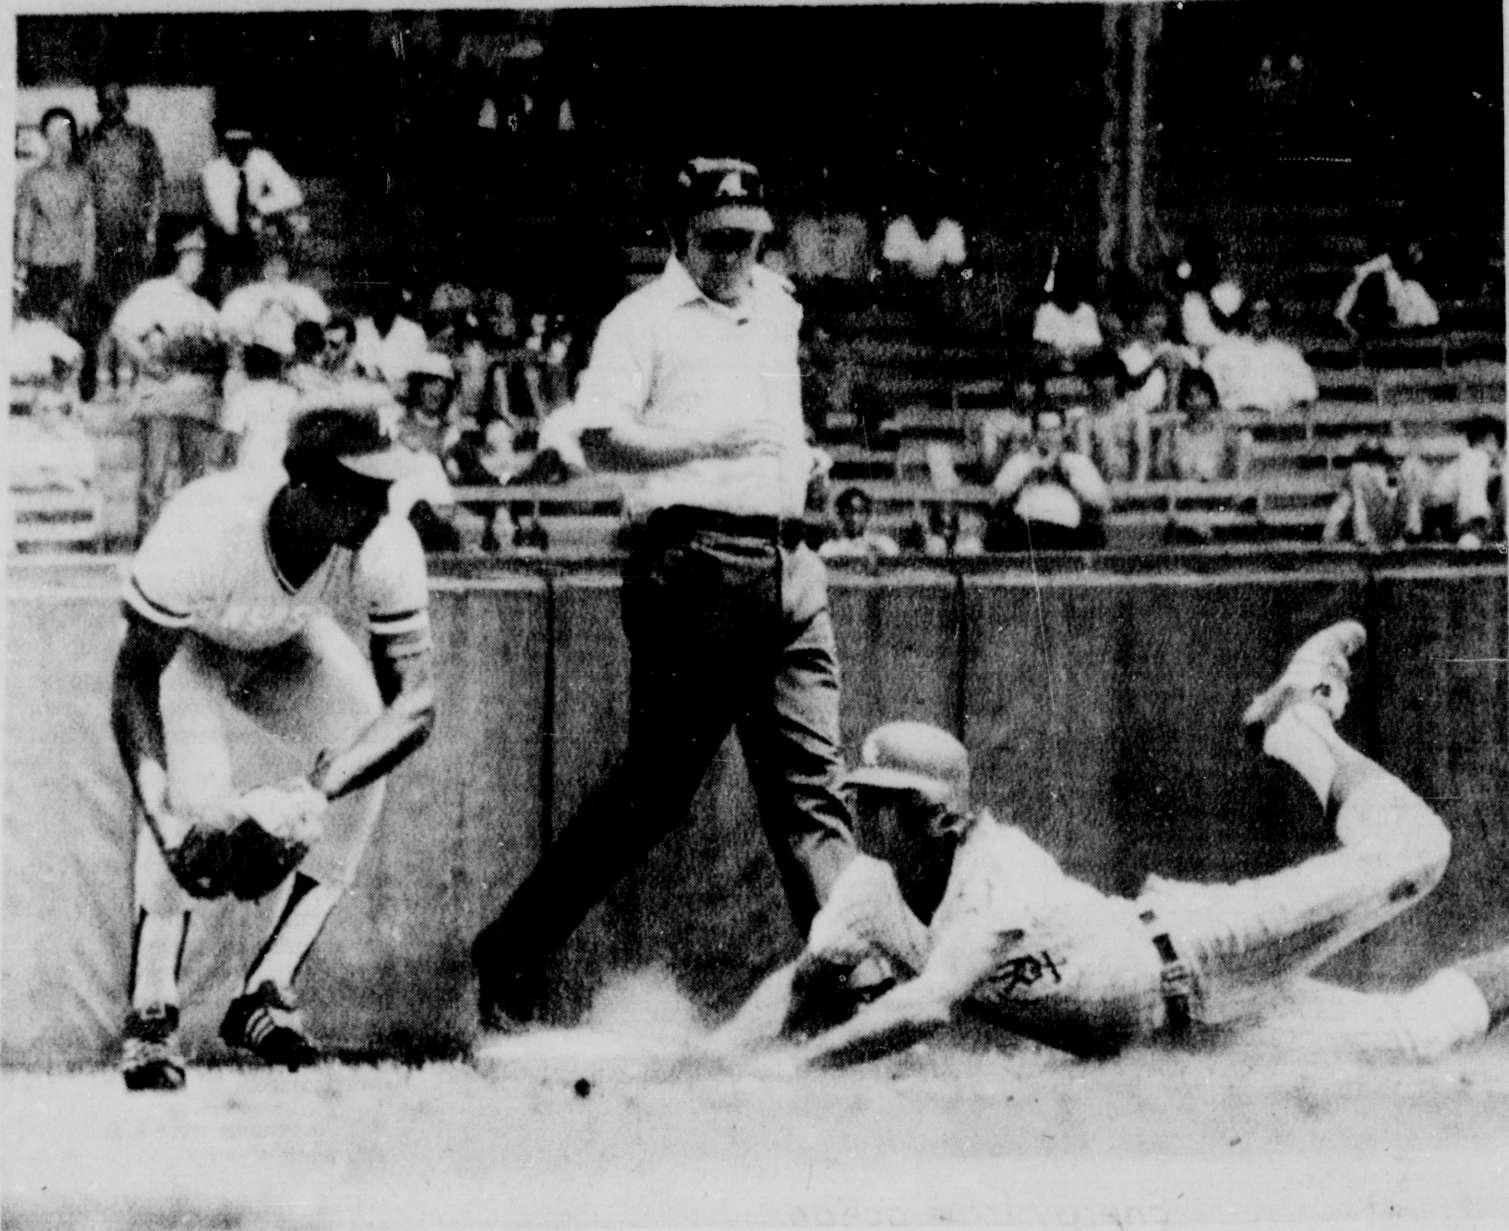

Kaat picked up his 12th victory against only four losses and had a two-hit shutout going into the seventh inning. John Mayberry had doubled in the second and George Brett had singled in the sixth.

With two out in the seventh, Al Cowens singled and Buck Martinez walked. Rich Gossage came in and gave up a run-scoring single to pinch batter Harmon Killebrew and then walked Jim Wohlford to fill the bases.

Hamilton, recently acquired from Oakland, has been superb in three relief stints with the Sox. He earned a save last Wednesday, a victory in relief Friday and another save Sunday.

Henderson into second safely

Chicago White Sox Ken Henderson slides into second base safely during the first inning of play Sunday against the Kansas City Royals. Second baseman Frank White takes the throw from Buck Martinez too late to put the tag on Henderson. Chicago swept the three-game weekend series with the Royals with Sunday's 3-1 victory.

Johnson leads rain-plagued Western Open golf tourney

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — George Johnson was just looking for an exemption and lightning-jolted Jerry Heard, fresh out of a hospital bed, was looking for the title going into today's weather-delayed, double-round, 36-hole windup to the $200,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

But if conditions aren't right, Heard won't challenge.

"If I get tired in the first 18 holes, I won't play the second 18," Heard said Sunday after his gutsy 74 had put him within five strokes of the lead.

"And," he continued with a smile, "if there's a cloud in the sky, if it's just the tiniest little bit cloudy, I probably won't even hit it off the first tee."

Heard, Lee Trevino and Bob Nichols were struck by lightning Friday in a violent thunderstorm that swept over the 7,002-yard Butler National Golf Club course. All were hospitalized for treatment and observation and were released Sunday morning just before the delayed second round.

Trevino, the hardest hit of the three, and Nichols headed home immediately. Heard went to the tee.

"We're all okay," Heard said. "But the doctor told us that if we weren't young, strong men in good condition, it could have killed us."

Heard suffered burns on the inside of his legs.

"I'll be walking like John Wayne for a few days, but other than that I'm fine," he said.

He said he chose to play because "the course is so tough, the scores are so high and I had a pretty good first round (a

69) and I thought I'd take advantage of the opportunity."

Johnson, a 34-year-old veteran of seven years on the tour said he wasn't excited after a brilliant, five-under-par 66 had given him a one-stroke advantage after 36 holes of play.

"There's too much golf left to be played to get too excited now."

Johnson, one of the few blacks on the tour, has yet to take a title and hasn't even gained an exemption from qualifying.

"I've been in the top 70 (money winners) four times, but I've never made the top 60 (the cut-off spot for determining an exemption). That's what I'd really like to do," he said after putting together a two-round total of 138, four under par.

His 30 on the back nine, including a 35-foot birdie putt on the final hole, lifted him one stroke in front of Hale Irwin. Irwin, who just last week relinquished his U.S. Open title, had a 67-139 and was the only other man under par.

Wally Armstrong, Gibby Gilbert, John Schlee and Tom Kite followed at 142. Heard was in a group at 143.

The first round leaders, Australian David Graham and Arnold Palmer, fell well back with a couple of terrible rounds. Graham went from an opening, course-record 65 to an 81. Palmer, in second alone after a first round 68, blew to a 79.

Tom Weiskopf had an 84 on the bumpy greens and failed to make the cut for the final two rounds.

Expos 7, Cards 3

5-run rally dumps Cards

MONTREAL (AP) — Barry Foote's batting average this season is an anemic-looking .189 which could mean the young Montreal Expos' catcher has not been terrorizing opposing pitchers.

"Early in the season, he wasn't swinging very good," Expos' Manager Gene Mauch said Sunday. "In the last 10 days or two weeks, he hasn't been very lucky."

Foote, who had six game-winning runs batted in last year, got his first of the 1975 season Sunday afternoon, cracking a two-run homer off John Curtis to key five-run rally in the eighth inning that gave the Expos a 7-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Foote's homer, his third of the year, came after Bob Bailey walked and replaced by pinch-runner Larry Lintz. Following Foote's blast, Nate Colbert, acquired earlier this month from the Detroit Tigers, socked his first home run for Montreal.

Later in the inning, winning pitcher Steve Renko collected his second RBI of the game with a single and Tim Foli drove in the fifth run with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly.

"I thought I hit the ball well against them all series," said Foote. "But I seemed to be hitting it right at someone."

"When you hit home runs and you win, they're good. When you hit them and you lose, they're no good."

"I think I've been swinging the bat pretty good in the last two of three weeks, but it's been right at somebody. It shows up in the stats."

Foote also made a couple of good defensive plays in the game to cut down Cardinals runners.

In the second, he threw to Foli at short to nab speedy Lou Brock and then in the eighth, he caught Bake McBride trying to steal second.

"When I'm playing well, I throw pretty good," Foote explained.

Renko, 3-5, scattered 10 hits to record his first complete game victory since last Sept. 28 against Philadelphia.

"He was struggling to get his control in the first inning," said Mauch. "Once he got it, it stayed with him."

The Cards, who took three of the five games in the series, jumped to a two-run lead in the first.

With one out, Ted Sizemore walked and advanced to second on a single by Willie Davis. Reggie Smith's single scored Sizemore and after Ted Simmons fanned, McBride's base hit scored Davis.

The Expos closed the gap to 2-1 in the third when Renko doubled and scored two outs later on a base hit by Gary Carter. St. Louis came back with a run in the fourth when McBride singled and went to second on an error by Pepe Mangual and scored on Mike Tyson's double to left center.

Pele draws 35,620 spectators into Washington's RFK Stadium

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soccer superstar Pele visited the nation's capital over the weekend, much to the delight of President Ford and some 35,000 fans who were captivated by his skill and charm on and off the field.

Operating under tight security to prevent incidents like the one in Boston about 10 days ago, Pele was welcomed to the White House by Ford on Saturday and the two kicked around a ball in the Rose Garden during his 30-minute meeting.

On Sunday, Pele, the 34-year-old star Brazilian forward, had two goals and two assists, leading the New York Cosmos to a 9-2 victory over the Washington Diplomats before a crowd of 35,620 at RFK Stadium, the largest crowd ever to see a North American Soccer League game.

"Today was the most beautiful gift the American people gave to him with the crowd of 35,000 because the average that has seen him is raised to 25,000," said Pele's translator, Julio Mazzei.

The huge but orderly crowd cheered loudly whenever the ball was passed in the direction of Pele, who said afterwards that he was pacing himself because "this is not the only game of the season. We play another in two days."

Pele scored with a left-footed kick from 20 yards with 39 minutes, 18 seconds gone, making the score 4-1, then booted in his second goal at 62:30 off Diplomats goalie George Taratsides.

He missed two penalty kicks, one hitting the cross bar and Taratsides, and the other being stopped on a diving catch by the Diplomats' goalie.

"It's very tough to defend against Pele," said Taratsides. "You don't know really how he is going to take a shot at you. What can I say?"

Asked if he thought he was the savior of American soccer, Pele answered negatively. "He believes that everybody must work together to build soccer. He came over here not only to play soccer but to build the sport in America. That is why he is very happy to be here," he was quoted as saying.

Lexington trims Sedalia's margin

Lexington has moved within one and one-half games of Western Division leader Sedalia in the Central Missouri Ban Johnson League baseball race on the strength of a doubleheader victory over New Franklin Sunday.

After defeating New Franklin, 8-2, in the opening game Sunday night, Lexington hurler Bill Mullis tossed five innings of no-hit ball in the second game, which Lexington claimed, 15-0.

Jim Miller and Lee Millentree homered for winning run on an error.

Charles Johnson of Tipton hit the games only home run. Dan Bestgen, who came in in relief, struck out 13 batters and was the winning pitcher. Oliver Marshall was tagged with the loss.

Huntsville, the Eastern Division leader, slipped past Centralia, 4-3. Jim Summers struck out six batters enroute to the victory. Jim Chism was charged with the loss.

The only other weekend action was scheduled Friday in Moberly between Huntsville and Marshall. The game was postponed due to a softball tournament in Moberly.

What good is a guarantee on the muffler when your tailpipe goes?

There's more to an exhaust system than a muffler. There's a tailpipe, exhaust pipe, clamps and hangers. And statistics tell us that the tailpipe often goes before the muffler.

Yet most of the people who repair exhaust systems only give a lifetime guarantee on their mufflers. If you have to buy a tailpipe and it goes, guess who pays? And you could pay as much as $35.

That's not the case at your Scotti Muffler Center. At Scotti, we guarantee any and every part of the exhaust system we install. Pipes, muffler, you name it. And we'll replace them free for as long as you own your car.

Yet with all this same charge about the same as places with less of a guarantee. So at Scotti you get off a lot cheaper in the long run.

Weather works in favor of A. J. Foyt at Pocono

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — A.J. Foyt learned his lesson. The conservative approach gains him nothing.

"I hung back at Indianapolis, waiting to make my move, and what happens: the rain washes out the last 25 laps and I'm stuck in third," Foyt said after winning Sunday's rain-shortened 500-mile race at Pocono International Raceway.

Foyt didn't do any hanging back during the Pocono race, which was red-flagged after 425 miles, and the veteran Texan and his V8-powered Coyote declared the winner.

"I kept my eyes on the sky when I could," Foyt said. "I saw the rain cloud coming there at the end, so I turned up the power all the way to go for broke."

"We were gambling on the weather. I didn't want to get caught with my pants down like at Indianapolis."

Foyt stretched a slim lead over runner-up Wally Dallenbach into a 300-yard advantage before the skies opened on the record crowd of more than 100,000.

"Racing is a big gamble and a lot of luck," Foyt said. "You have to be in the right spot and have the luck like I did today."

Skies were kinder to Dallenbach on Sunday than they were for the Indianapolis 500 last month. Dallenbach was leading there comfortably, but his engine broke — only 10 minutes before the rain started.

"You never like to finish second, but it's a whole lot better than breaking," Dallenbach said.

The top two finishers were the only drivers on the same lap, with third-place Billy Vukovich and fourth place Roger McCluskey one circuit back on the 2½-mile tri-oval. Gary Rettenhausen was fifth, two laps back along with sixth-place Johnny Rutherford, the defending champion.

John Martin, Jimmy Caruthers, Bill Puterbaugh and George Snider rounded out the top 10.

Foyt, who pocketed $84,000 of the estimated $400,000 purse, was hounded most of the race, which was delayed two hours in starting by rain and a wet track, by Gordon Johncock in a Wildcat identical to Dallenbach's.

Johncock, who started first in the field of 33 cars, spun his machine in the second turn and rapped the wall sharply on lap 140 while running second. He was uninjured.

Johncock's problem while among the leaders was not uncommon.

Among the eight leaders in the race were Pancho Carter, who retired with a set of burned out valves; Mario Andretti, out with a burned piston; Steve Krisiloff, dropped valve, and Jerry Grant, delayed for more than 20 laps with a cooling housing that was replaced.

Utz, Leonard continue hot Capital pace

(Democrat-Capital Service)

HOLTS SUMMIT, Mo. — The familiar names of Utz and Leonard occupied the victory spots Saturday night after the super-sprint and late model stock car events at Capital Speedway.

Bill Utz, Sedalia, captured his fourth feature of the year, coming from the back of the 20-car field in the 25-lap event. Lossen Leonard, Jefferson City, took the late model stock car lead on the last lap to chalk up his seventh straight feature win. He has not been beaten in late model feature races here this year.

Utz, winner of the first heat, outrunning Gladstone, Mo., ace Gene Gennetten, took the lead from Gennetten in the feature after it looked like Gennetten was going to knock down his first feature win of the year. Utz, high-point man in the Missouri Sprint Car Association standings, is forced to start on the tailend of every race he's in.

Gary Scott, Holts Summit, and Sonny Smyser of Glenwood, won the other two heat races in the sprint division.

Leonard finished second to Eddie Gray in the opening late model heat event. He passed Vandalia driver Dalton Walker on the white flag lap to knock down his feature win. Walker finished a close second and well ahead of third-place finisher Tom Frasher of Jefferson City.

Walker won the second heat race, while Gene Dye, Auxvasse, Mo., won the other heat in the late model division.

The hobby stock car feature was won by Johnny Stevens of Jefferson City. Heat race winners were Dale Edwards and Stan Booth.

Utz, Phillips run strong at Marshall

(Democrat-Capital Service)

MARSHALL — Sedalia's Bill Utz bested a field of more than 30 sprint cars here Sunday night and notched his fourth feature victory of the season at Saline County Speedway.

Utz, who also won a heat race, finished ahead of Tom Corbin, Carrollton, and Ralph Parkinson, Jr., Kansas City, winning his fourth feature in five outings here this season.

Craig Bucklew, Columbia, along with Ed Grimes, Slater, won the other two heat races.

Corbin, the only other super-sprint feature winner here this year besides Utz, won the consolation feature.

In the late model stock car division, Gene Dye, Auxvasse, Mo., crossed the finish line ahead of Russell Phillips, Sedalia, and Albie Wilson, Miami, Mo.

Phillips, having his best night of the season here this year, won one of the heats. The other went to Wilson.

Penn State will open its 1975 football season at home against Stanford.

3 crowns go on line

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Defending heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali and British challenger Joe Bugner today completed training for their outdoor title match.

Bugner shadow boxed and skipped rope at Negara Stadium and declared himself "fit and strong ... I shall give a very good show tomorrow."

Bugner said he weighed 226 pounds today and that he expected to shed about 14 pounds in the humid heat against Ali Tuesday. The fight starts about 9:30 a.m. local time and, thanks to the international date line, will be seen on closed circuit theater television in North America in prime time Monday evening.

It's the first heavyweight title fight in this part of the world.

Ali vs. Bugner is to be screened as one-third of a championship triple bill involving light heavyweight champion Victor Galindez against challenger Jorge Ahumada and middleweight titleholder Carlos Monzon against Tony Licata. The latter two fights are being held in Madison Square Garden.

Ali was rated a 3-1 favorite by oddsmakers in his 16th title fight. At 33, he's eight years older than the European heavyweight champion.

Ali weighed 225 at the official weigh-in Saturday but was expected to enter the ring under 220.

The champion collects 2 million dollars for his efforts. Bugner gets $500,000.

A bomb — Malaysian witchdoctor — has been assigned to assure clear skies. Weather forecasters do not expect rain. The temperature was expected to be in the 80s.

A crowd of about 15,000 was expected to attend the contest in Merdeka Stadium, which holds some 38,000. The bout was to be on home TV in Malaysia.

Security precautions were strict. Police combed the stadium today for bombs. Ali and Bugner have large contingents of bodyguards.

Bugner said he expected Ali to start fast.

"The first few rounds should really be hot ... Ali will almost certainly try to dominate things."

Ali has declined to pick a round in which he would attempt to knock out the challenger. Bugner lost a 15-round decision to Ali in Las Vegas, Nev., in February 1973. In that fight, Ali predicted that he would put Bugner away in round seven.

Beo Wolf, Stero Deck post top trial times

Beo Wolf won the ninth race in a time of 15.66 seconds Saturday at State Fair Downs and is ranked as one of the favorites for the July 6 Futurity on the Fairgrounds.

Beo Wolf, owned by J.W. Williamson, was nearly two-tenths of a second faster than Reubh Lib, which was caught at 15.64 seconds in Saturday's trials.

In the derby trials, Stero Deck, owned by Leon Lefler, won the second heat in a time of 20.34 to set the pace for the derby finals, which will also be held July 6.

Kenneth Handy's Sharp Cookie won the other derby trial heat in a time of 20.51, which is the same time posted by Cyn Boy.

Sharp Hummer and Charleo Jet won the other two futurity qualifying heats for the July 6 final, which is worth nearly $6,200.

The purse for Saturday's derby final totals more than $5,500.

Saturday's other winners included Johnny Holiday in the three-year-old and up open; Honey Eyed Girl in the three-year-old and up maiden; Cherr's Image in the two-year-old maiden open; Cenla Jet Injun in the two-year-old open; Trial Charger in the three-year-old (speed index 69 and under); and Taggs Pride in the two-year-old schooling open.

Elder captures NASCAR event

GARDENA, Calif. (AP) — Ray Elder of Caruthers, Calif., took the lead on the 67th lap and won a 100-lap Grand National stock car race to maintain his point lead in the NASCAR West Division standings.

Elder won the 50-mile race in a 1974 Dodge by three seconds over Sonny Easley of Van Nuys, Calif. Ivan Baldwin of Modesto, Calif., was third.

James Quinn of McDonald, Pa., will captain Navy's 1974 baseball team.

Foyt makes it two of three

California 500 winner A.J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., steps out of his Gilmore racer after being claimed the winner in the rain-shortened Pocono 500 Sunday in Long Pond, Pa. The race was shortened to 425 miles when heavy rain canceled the remaining 25 laps. Foyt claimed two of the three 500-mile races this year taking the checker Sunday ahead of Wally Dallenbach.

Crowds flock to Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Chris Evert, the defending Wimbledon tennis champion, labored to defeat Betty Stove of The Netherlands 5-7, 7-5, 6-0 today and reached the semifinals.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Wimbledon, the tennis tournament the players call the world's best, is producing its own brand of magic once again.

Fans have been sleeping outside the gates of the All England Club in this tree-lined southwest London suburb as record crowds engulf the tournament which ranks high on the list of the world's most popular international sports events.

More than 1,000 newsmen, broadcasters and photographers from 40 countries vie for the time of the game's biggest stars.

"The crowds are fantastic. I haven't seen anything like it," said a gate official as the first week's attendance hit the 190,000 mark with last year's two-week record of 306,161 expected to be broken.

Ticket scalpers outside the gates were asking about $50 for $7 center court seats, officially sold by ballot months ago.

Americans, Italians, French,

Spaniards, and Scandinavians were among those waving fistfuls of five-pound notes in hopes of buying tickets to watch the day's play.

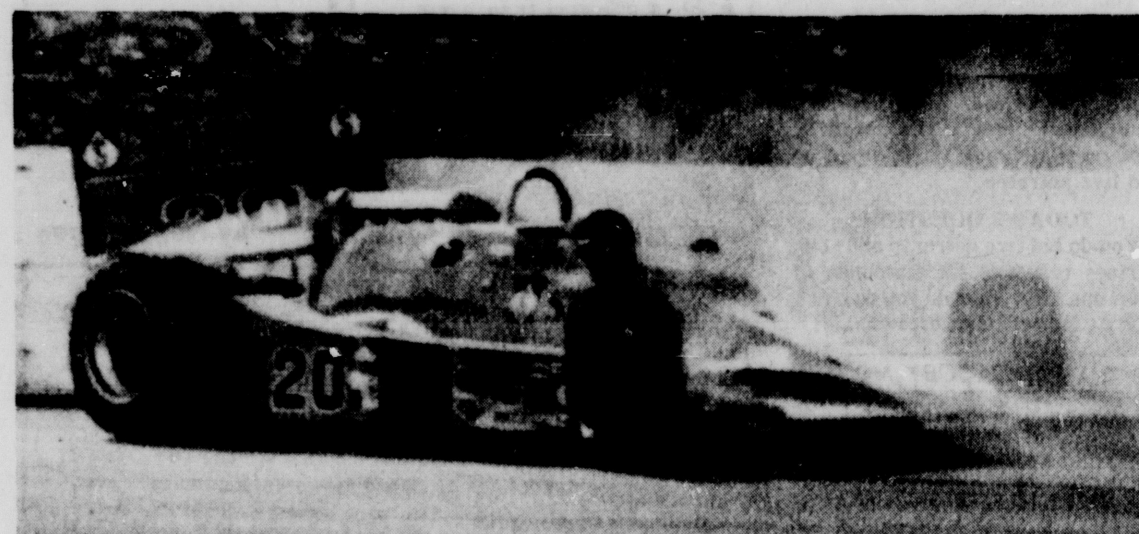

As the men's and women's quarter-final round gets underway today, defending champions Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert face their first tough competition after a one-day hiatus on Sunday.

Connors, 22, has looked invincible in his four matches thus far, and Miss Evert has hardly ruffled her feathers against four opponents.

But with the All England Club's grass courts playing unpredictably, upsets may be in store. Connors meets the elegant Mexican Raul Ramirez, while the other men's quarter-finals pit Argentina's Guillermo Vilas against powerful Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

Arthur Ashe against Sweden's Bjorn Borg, and Tom Okker of The Netherlands against Tony Roche of Australia.

Miss Evert plays unseeded Betty Stove of The Netherlands, while Billie Jean King meets Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union. The other quarter-finals will be between Britain's Virginia Wade and Evonne Goolagong-Cawley of Australia.

Johncock ... accident victim

Hot streak continues

Joanne Carner wins third tourney of '75

TORONTO (AP) — Joanne Carner, the U.S. Ladies Professional Golf Association Player of the Year in 1974, is once again the hottest star on the tour.

Winner of six tournaments and $87,094 last year, she has come on strong in the last six weeks to win three more — two of them in playoffs — to move to within striking distance of money-earnings' leader Sandra Palmer.

The 36-year-old Mrs. Carner, a five-times winner of the U.S. Amateur before turning professional in 1970, relied on her brilliant putting Sunday to defeat Carol Mann on the second extra hole in the $60,000 LPGA tournament at St. George's Golf and Country Club.

One stroke off the pace after the second round of the 54-hole tournament, Mrs. Carner fired a one-under-par 72 on the final 18 to finish tied at 214, five under par, with Miss Mann, the 34-year-old LPGA president now living in Towson, Md.

Mrs. Carner, of Lake Worth, Fla., had rounds of 73-69-72 while Miss Mann was up and down at 69-76-69, firing five birdies in her last round to charge from behind after losing one stroke to par on the par-4 375-yard fourth hole, her only bogey of the day.

The $12,000 Mrs. Carner won here brought her earnings for 1975 to $46,518 less than $9,000 behind the leader, Sandra Palmer, with $55,279.

Miss Palmer was one of four players tied for 22nd place here, picking up $567.

Miss Mann earned $6,500 for second place here and is third in the rankings with $36,526.

Tied for third were Sandra Haynie and Shirley Englehorn, each with 215 for $3,800. Miss Haynie added a 74 to earlier rounds of 71 and 70 while Miss Englehorn had a 70 to go with a first-round 71 and a second-round 74.

Intuition guides defending champion to women's title

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Call it woman's intuition or ESP or whatever you want.

Barbara Berkmyer knew from almost the beginning she was on her way to another Missouri Women's Golf Association tournament title Saturday.

"Sometimes you wake up in the morning and it's like somebody wound you up and let you go," she said. "I felt strong. I felt like nothing could go wrong. I'm glad I didn't have to play me."

Mrs. Berkmyer, a 31-year-old St. Louisian, did have to play Karin Cooper of Kansas City, but not for long, blazing to a 12 and 11 win at the Algonquin Golf Club in the most lopsided final in the 37-year history of the tournament.

"What can I say?" sighed the 28-year-old Mrs. Cooper, who was eliminated in just 25 holes of the scheduled 36-hole match play contest. "She just tore me up. I didn't shoot that bad...it just sounds so bad."

Mrs. Berkmyer, winning her fourth tournament title and the second in a row, fired a one-under par 71 and was eight-up after the morning 18 holes.

Mrs. Cooper had a 79 after the first round and fell even further behind in afternoon play with a bogey on the second hole and double bogeys on the fourth and fifth. Mrs. Berkmyer also double-bogeyed on the fifth but clinched the match with par on the seventh.

"I think this is the finest golf I've ever played," said Mrs. Berkmyer, the mother of a 17-month-old son. "I was a buzz saw out there. I just don't know why I had to do it to Karin."

Haas, Strange's torrid finish leads Wake Forest

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It took a more flamboyant team to explain why reserved, easy-going Jay Haas is college golf's 1975 national champion.

"Jay always has been a good player. He just hasn't won anything. Now he has a title to put behind his name," said Haas' Wake Forest teammate, Curtis Strange, winner of the same honor a year ago.

Haas contends the individual

Distance swim planned July 12

TORONTO (AP) — Angela Kondrak, 15, who ended her swim across Lake Ontario last August with about a mile to go, is practicing for a second attempt July 12.

The Toronto teen-ager has been swimming about 40 miles a week since May and went 10 miles in a recent workout, swimming 64 strokes per minute.

The crossing covers 32 miles from Youngstown, N.Y. In last year's try, she was blown off course and made little progress during the final six hours of the 24-hour swim.

National Collegiate Athletic Association title wasn't on his mind until the final holes Saturday at Ohio State. Then he bore down and won with a final 70 for a 72-hole total of 282, a scant one-stroke margin over Alabama's Jerry Pate. Strange was another shot back at 284.

"Jesse Haddock, our coach, says if you play for the team, the individual honors will take care of themselves," said Haas, a 21-year-old junior from Belleville, Ill.

"Our team spirit is unbelievable. The last few holes I knew we had the team title locked, so I worked on the individual thing," said Haas, who clinched the championship with a four-foot par putt on 18.

With the fine finishes by Haas and Strange, who had the tournament's best round of 67, Wake Forest rolled to its second successive team honor. The Deacons, with four players totaling 1,156 strokes, breezed to a 33-shot victory over runnerup Oklahoma State with 1,189.

Southern California and Alabama shared third at 1,190, Brigham Young was fifth at 1,194, East Tennessee State sixth at 1,202 and Texas and Indiana tied for seventh at 1,204.

Haas two-putted the 510-yard 14th hole for a birdie four to break a tie at five-under-par with Pate. He never lost the lead, paring the last four holes.

The new champion admitted the tension was heavy playing with Pate in the final three-some. The two had shared low amateur honors in the U.S. Open the previous week.

"I was trying not to match up with Jerry. But it's hard not to when you're going head-to-head," Haas conceded. The big rivals did match closing rounds of 70.

Tied for fourth in the individual chase were Bob Byman of Wake Forest and Oklahoma State aces Lindy Miller, only a freshman, and Tom Jones. All had 290s. Next came Phil Hancock of Florida, the 1974 runnerup, at 291.

Welfare crackdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 11 million welfare recipients are required to furnish their Social Security numbers to state agencies beginning Tuesday in the newest federal crackdown on welfare fraud.

New applicants for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), running at better than 90,000 persons a month recently, must provide their Social Security numbers as a condition of eligibility.

Those already on AFDC rolls will have to provide the numbers within the next six months, as states routinely verify their eligibility to continue receiving public assistance.

Welfare recipients who do not have Social Security numbers will be helped by the states to obtain them after evidence of age, identity and citizenship or alien status is furnished.

U.S. Welfare Commissioner Robert B. Carlsen said the requirement will make it more difficult for welfare mothers to apply for public assistance for children who don't exist and assist state agencies in keeping track of the fathers of welfare children.

KEEPING TRACK OF THE FATHERS OF WELFARE CHILDREN.

Another new law going into effect Tuesday requires states to determine the paternity of welfare children, locate the fathers and collect child support payments. States which do not have an adequate parent locator system in operation by 1977 risk the loss of 5 per cent of the federal share of AFDC money.

President Ford has on his desk a congressionally approved measure giving the states another 30 days, to the end of July, to file plans for such parent locator systems. The original deadline was Tuesday.

The law also gives HEW access to once-confidential files of the Internal Revenue Service, the Social Security Administration, the Pentagon and the Veterans Administration to find the last known address and place of employment of deserting welfare fathers.

The government estimates that 1.3 million absent fathers are costing taxpayers $1.3 billion a year for support of their children.

New AMC Pacer.
"...the freshest, most creative, most people-oriented auto to be born in the U.S. in 15 years."
—Motor Trend.

The new Pacer looks different because it is different. We started with four big people. Gave them plenty of elbow, shoulder, hip, leg and headroom. Then we built Pacer around them.

So Pacer is wide. So wide, that you get the passenger comfort of most midsize cars.

Became Pacer wide, it rode like a much bigger car. The wide stance makes for sturdier, stabler handling, too. And Pacer's sloping hood, wide windshield and wrap-around rear window give you a view to match the room. Even Pacer's doors are different. The passenger door is much wider than the driver's to make it easier for everybody to get in and out.

In back, there's a hatch that opens wide and seat that folds down to give you lots of wide-open cargo space.

And finally, Pacer is backed by the wide, wide coverage of the exclusive AMC BUYER PROTECTION PLAN.

Economic news is changing

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — For a very long time the only economic news we heard was bad — goals unmet, expectations unrealized, events failing to live up to forecasts.

Now the news is changing, and no one item represents a more interesting departure from the past mold than the latest figures for U.S. trade activity. A huge surplus, $1.05 billion, was reported for May.

Only a few months ago private and government trade officials were expecting a trade deficit, or that Americans would buy more abroad than foreigners spent here.

A large or continued outflow of this sort is of great significance because when a country regularly spends more than it sells it weakens its entire system. It lets its energy drain away.

It is little different from the typical householder's situation. If he runs a deficit for a year or two, living off credit, he might not get into trouble. There's no necessity to balance your books by the year.

If, however, he continues to live beyond his means, buying more than he produces in the way of a paycheck, he's headed for trouble. Eventually he'll have to pay those bills or buy less.

When a nation falls into bad habits of this sort a red light goes on in the international currency markets. The country is indicating weakness, and its currency becomes less desirable to hold. It drops in price.

If the situation isn't corrected the nation might be forced to devalue its money.

When the May trade figures were announced the trading world was encouraged, and the price of the dollar was bid up in foreign markets to its highest in several weeks.

Considering the forecasts of just a few months ago — that the nation would run a trade deficit — this news is extremely welcome and surprising. How did it come about?

Examination of the figures shows that the country imported 11.5 per cent less in May than in April, a reflection of the depressed state of economic activity to be sure, but overall, a healthy turn.

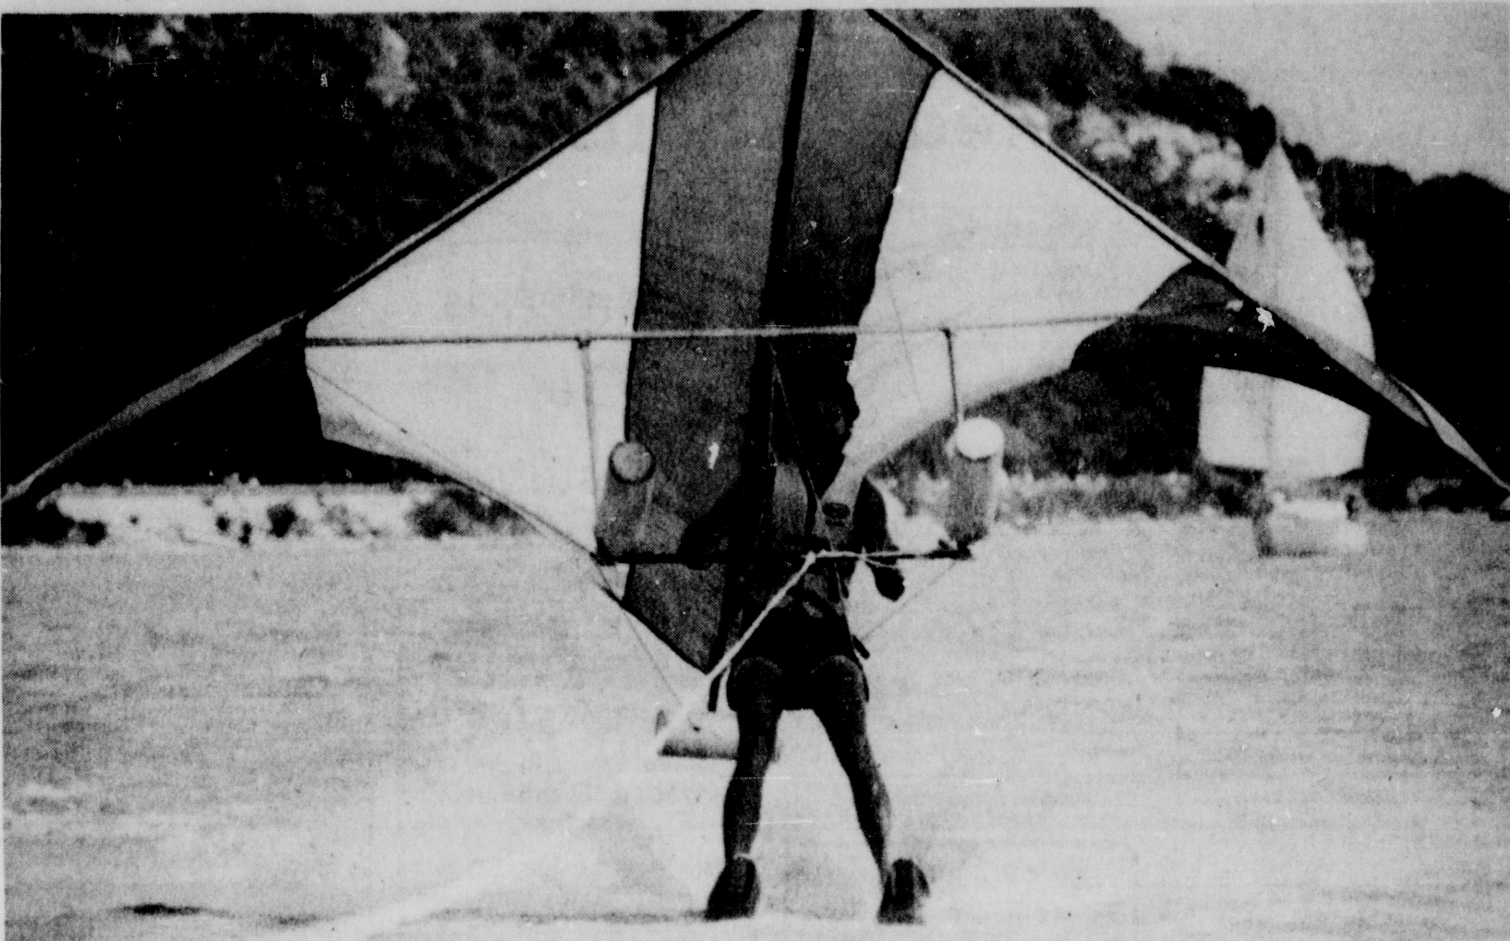

Unfortunately, but also reflecting worldwide recession, American exports also declined, but only by 5 per cent. On balance, the figures were decidedly in favor of the United States.

Unfortunately, but also reflecting worldwide recession, American exports also declined, but only by 5 per cent. On balance, the figures were decidedly in favor of the United States.

While the figures already are interpreted as an indication of better U.S. economic health, some further evidence is needed that the situation isn't a short-term aberration.

For one thing, the decline in imports resulted mainly from a sharp cutback in oil purchases, a development that puzzles. It will take a couple of more months to confirm whether or not oil imports will remain lower than anticipated.

Nevertheless, it appears likely now that the United States will export more than it imports in 1975, which is a definite improvement over a trade deficit of $2.3 billion in 1974.

Weather hurts tobacco

GRAND POINT, La. (AP) — Poor weather has destroyed nearly half of this year's crop of an exotic and distinctively aromatic tobacco that can be successfully grown only on a 400-acre plot near here, an agriculture official says.

County Agent Dan Fontenot estimated that this year's Perique tobacco crop will be down 40 to 50 per cent because heavy spring rains washed away soil from many of the plants' root systems, allowing the sun later to scald the roots and kill the tobacco.

Perique tobacco, which is exported to every continent in the world for inclusion in expensive tobacco blends, is successfully grown only on the sandy loam of St. James Parish (county).

Perique grown elsewhere does not have the distinctive flavor and aroma of the Louisiana tobacco, Fontenot said.

The agent said some of the crop has been harvested early this year because of the bad weather. The rest will be harvested in the next 2 to 4 weeks, he said.

Last year's crop was 157,500 pounds, which the farmers sold for $1 a pound. Perique tobacco is used mostly in blends and is not generally sold in retail stores.

"Nobody smokes Perique straight. A few may try, but it's just too pungent for any man to smoke or chew," Fontenot said in a telephone interview.

Perique is grown by 25 families who raise the tobacco as a supplement to their vegetable crops, Fontenot said. "It's a tradition which has been handed down within the families from year to year."

According to legend, the tobacco was named for the Indian brave Perique, who taught the special curing process to Pierre Chenet, an Acadian driven from Nova Scotia in 1755.

The second largest river in the United States is the Missouri which runs 2,315 miles from its farthest headwaters to its mouth where it joins the Mississippi.
